Pure Gold Won't Do.
Alloy Needed in Teeth.
Must Stand Friction.
Men Are Like Metal.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co. That which is absolutely pure lacks strength. And that which is strong to resist friction lacks absolute purity. In dentistry this is made clear by experience and practice.

In history it is made clear too often by the flames that burned men.

A wise dentist and doctor were talking: "Nature limits her gifts to matter as to men."

The best and most valuable of metals is gold. But we can use it pure only when surroundings protect it.

If a dentist builds a tooth, he cannot make it of pure gold. For pure gold will not stand the friction, the biting, the struggles that go on among teeth.

A tooth all of pure gold, indeed, is an interesting institution. But that previous to acid, always bright, would cannot be made.

Fortunately we can use pure gold in fillings. When enamel hard as tooth form a protecting coat, we can use the pure gold as a filler, and defy in that filling all of nature's action.

We can mix the gold with baser, inferior metal and build a tooth that will crack nuts and last a long time, but it will grow black and show the base mixture in it.

There ought to be a moral in this fact that life's friction is too much for the noblest and purest of metals.

There is an excellent lesson in this doctor's talk. For man, in contact with the world and its struggle, is exactly the gold that the dentists use in their work.

Many a good man has gone to the wall—because he was pure gold and could not stand the friction. He might have lasted and been admired—a very good gold tooth among men—had there been more alloy in his nature.

Here and there some man of pure gold is protected by conditions, and, like the pure gold filling in the tooth, he lasts in spite of his good qualities.

But far too often the man of pure character, free from base alloy, capable of compromise with his conscience is destroyed—or cast aside at the very beginning, as unfit for hard work.

Of men we can truly say what the doctor says of gold. The man to last, in spite of friction, must have the alloy of moral hardness. Then he can stand the friction—but he turns black.

Warren Hastings, amazed at his own honesty, was a strong gold tooth with much base alloy. Of pure gold, he could never have done this work.

The British owe modern India, Burke owes a fine speech to this human tooth of gold alloy.

If you examine closely the private life of a Washington or even a Lincoln, you find the alloy. Under the test of history's acid these great names turn black. But it was the alloy that enabled them to do the hard work in spite of friction and fighting.

Less wise and far seeing than the scientific dentist, civilization is for ever putting human pure gold in

Old Time Dances Coming Back, Ohio Teachers Declare

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—Old time dances, which appealed to the fathers and mothers of the present day in their youth, are coming back into their own, Ohio dancing masters, ending their convention, declared here today.

Teachers of dancing from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Michigan and Ohio, attended the convention to be initiated into the mysteries of the heel and toe polka, the varsovienne and the rye waltz.

There is also a strong call, they said for the plain quadrille, the Virginia reel, the Cuban waltz, the Duchess, the three step and the Oxford waltz.

U. S. AIMS BLOW AT GIGANTIC FOOD MERGER

Government Files Suit Against Food Products Merger.

WARDS NAMED Seven Corporations and Eight Individuals Listed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Federal government struck today to prevent the consummation of the $2,000,000,000 food products merger, which has been characterized by its opponents as a "gigantic food monopoly."

YOUNGSTOWN BOY COASTER KILLED

YOUNGSTOWN, Feb. 8.—One boy was killed and four children injured in coasting accidents here over the week-end. Soley Shurtz, 11, was killed when pierced by a runner on his sled. He tried to walk home, but toppled over in the snow and died on the way to a hospital.

Managers of Two Places Notified Public Parties on Other Nights Must be Conducted in "Orderly Manner."

BOTTLE THROWN FROM ONE HALL

Police Charge Several Men Attending One Dance in Fifth Street Building Saturday Had Been Drinking.

Declaring that East Liverpool's eight-man police department is unable to cope with the situation, Mayor Ralph Benedum today placed a ban on all Saturday night dances within the city limits.

The managers of two dance halls were notified by Captain of Police Conley that no more Saturday night dances would be permitted. Public dances may be held on other week days, the mayor said, so long as they are conducted "in an orderly manner."

Loiterers in Hallways.
The decision of the mayor and his service-safety director, John W. Moore, was reached after Captain Conley made a visit to Danceland, Fifth and Market street, conducted by William Curran.

Police charge that as Conley entered the door, some one threw a half pint bottle, containing liquor, from a Market street window. The bottle burst on the sidewalk, narrowly missing Patrolman Norman McFarland, who was passing along the street, police say.

Police also say that several men attending the dance were drinking. The hallways leading to the dance floor were crowded with loiterers, it is claimed.

The mayor's order was issued after a conference with Director Moore and Police Chief McDermott.

Police Chief's Statement
The order affects Curran, who has been conducting dances at Danceland, and William Powell, who has been in charge of the dances held by the Jolly Fellows' club in a Broadway lodge temple. The latter has not yet taken out his permit, costing $50, the mayor said, but his dances were being conducted with the understanding that the permit was to be taken out later.

The dance managers, police say, are supposed to provide police protection during the dances, but the specials have been unable to maintain order, it is claimed.

"We are underpoliced and it is only placing another hardship upon our force to have them look after the Saturday night crowds which swarm the public dance halls, Chief McDermott said.

"It is not our local people who are causing the trouble at these dances but it is the fellows who come in from nearby towns, bringing their liquor with them. With such a crowd to cope with it is next to an impossibility to maintain order."

Two Evangelistic Singers Open Meet In Church of Christ

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Kellems, Oregon evangelistic singers, personal workers and directors of young people's work, assisted in the opening services of an evangelistic campaign in the First Church of Christ yesterday.

Despite icy streets and adverse weather conditions, the attendance at the Bible school was 600. There were two additional, one at the morning service and the other at the evening service.

Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor, will preach on "The Passion of Jesus" tonight. Services will be held every evening this week with the exception of Saturday.

NOTICE
All owners of local No. 71 are requested to meet in the local hall at 7 o'clock tonight, to go to the home of the late Earl J. Bennett, BY ORDER OF PRESIDENT.

NOTICE OF O. U. A. M.
All members are requested to meet at Reed Building in Diamond, at 7:00 o'clock p. m. Monday Feb. 8 to attend funeral services for our late Brother Levi J. Bennett.

CLEVELAND LAD CONFESSES HE MURDERED TWO TO GET MONEY

William Clark Admits he Killed Couple on Fremont Farm.

ROBBED HOUSE

Ralph Hoffman and Wife Victims of Double Slaying.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—"I needed money; I knew the Hoffmans would be away Saturday night. That's the whole story."

In these words, according to police, William Clark, youthful Cleveland, told police and Sandusky county authorities today the motive for the double murder of Ralph Hoffman and wife on their farm near Fremont Saturday night.

"I'm a restless sort," he added explanatorily.

Clark under the guard of Sheriff William Wort, of Sandusky county, was returning to Fremont today to face a charge of first degree murder. Although Sandusky county has never sent a man to his death for a crime committed there, Prosecutor George Steffler planned to ask for the death penalty in this case. A speedy trial was said to be assured.

Shot Former Employers.
Clark, 25, former farmhand, but more lately steamfitter and at times bootlegger, was arrested yesterday morning at the home of a sister here, and calmly admitted, police say, that he had shot his former employers down in cold blood.

The Hoffmans were shot as they returned late Saturday night from their weekly shopping trip to Gibsonburg. Clark, according to authorities, had entered the Hoffman home during their absence, ransacked it for valuables and then lay down to await the return of the couple.

When the car drove into the yard, he ordered, "Hands up."

"Don't shoot, Bill. You can have anything we've got," Hoffman is said to have replied.

Dog May Be Witness.

Alarmed by being recognized, Clark fired. The bullet lodged in Hoffman's abdomen. Hoffman fled, and it was only as he heard another shot that he realized he was not being pursued. The second shot had wounded Mrs. Hoffman. Hoffman crawled through the heavy snow to the home of a neighbor.

Returning they found Mrs. Hoffman shot through the forehead, her body wedged between a pump and a small tree. They carried her to the house where she died a few minutes later.

Levi Bennett, 68, Cooper, is Dead, Funeral Tomorrow

Levi Bennett, 68, died Saturday at his home, 904 St. Clair avenue, following an illness of several months.
Mr. Bennett, who was a cooper, is survived by his widow, Lois L. Bennett; four sons, S. S. Bennett, R. W. Bennett, H. R. L. Bennett, this city, Charles D. Bennett, Cleveland, and two daughters, Mrs. Charles Runton and Mrs. E. W. Lawrence, both of this city.

He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Pride of the East Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, Modern Woodmen of the World and Coopers' local No. 71.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, in charge of Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery. Friends may view the body tonight.

Schleiter Funeral Services Will be Held Wednesday

Funeral services for John F. Schleiter, 59, Second street furniture dealer, who died Saturday in the Battle Creek, Mich., sanitarium, will be held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the home, 745 Minerva street. Rev. J. P. Dimitt, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Spring Hill cemetery, Wellsville. Friends may view the body tomorrow evening.

Man Is Shot Through Neck; Joseph Chetala Is Arrested

Street Car Track Gang Employee Charged With Shooting Alphonso Rocco, Wellsville, With Intent to Kill.

Accused of shooting Alphonso Rocco, 1212 Commerce street, Wellsville, as the result of an argument last night at Rocco's home, during which he was ejected from the house, Joseph Chetala, of 222 West Ninth street, is a prisoner today in the Wellsville jail. He is charged with shooting with intent to kill.

Rocco, according to physicians and police authorities, will probably recover. The bullet from Chetala's gun pierced Rocco's neck and lodged in a door sill.

According to police, Chetala, who is employed as a member of a track gang working for the street car company, visited with Rocco last night. A neighbor increased the party to three.

There was music during the evening and in the course of the impromptu program, an argument developed between Chetala and Rocco, it is reported, over a technicality in a piece of music.

Acting as peacemaker Rocco's neighbor advised Chetala to go home and led him out of the house. Later the neighbor went home himself.

Fires On Eastville Host.
Shortly after midnight, Chetala, incensed apparently, because of his ejection and the argument with Rocco, went back to Rocco's house, police say, and fired on his erstwhile host.

Rocco lives alone. According to the story told police, he laid on the floor a short time and then arose and dropped onto a bed. Evidently feeling his strength waning as a result of loss of blood, he made his way to a neighbor's home. His friends summoned Dr. J. S. McCulloch and the man's wound was dressed.

Police were notified. Chief of Police John Fultz and Officers Hurd and Kinney came to East Liverpool this morning at 5:30 o'clock and found Chetala at home. They placed him under arrest and took him back to Wellsville.

Pending developments in Rocco's condition, Mayor W. L. Fogo, of Wellsville, has set no definite time for Chetala's hearing.

GEORGE WILHELM IS RE-ELECTED LIBRARY COMMISSION PRESIDENT

Other Officers Named After Two New Trustees Qualify—Report Submitted by Librarian.

George Wilhelm was re-elected president, while Hugh Thorn was chosen vice-president and Attorney W. S. Foulks, secretary, of the Carnegie library commission at a recent meeting. It was announced today.

Two new members, E. L. Carson and Dr. R. R. Bode, qualified. The other member is C. C. Pomeroy.

The report of Miss Mary Hall, librarian, showed 50,020 books to have been circulated during 1925. Of this number 31,155 were issued to adults and 18,875 to juvenile. A grand total of 114,209 patrons visited the library and the reading room during the 367 days that the circulation department was opened.

Six hundred and fifty new borrowers' cards were issued, bringing the total number of borrowers using the library up to 5,157. Seven hundred and twelve new books were added, making a total of 14,952 books since the institution opened.

Sixty-one periodicals were received during the year, of which 41 were subscribed for, while 20 others were donated. The total amount of money expended during the year was $7,313.16, a balance of only 26 cents being on hand at the beginning of 1925. Collections in fines paid by borrowers amounted to $484.23.

TREE SURVEY REPORT URGES MORE BIGGER AND MORE BEAUTIFUL CITY

Recommendations Relative to Planting Along Streets and in Parks Made by State Forester and Associate.

A report of East Liverpool's tree survey, one of the most exhaustive ever made in Ohio, and which was in charge of Edmund Seerast, Wooster, state forester, and J. S. Houser, associate entomologist, was announced today by the Chamber of Commerce under whose auspices the work was done.

Results of the study of shade tree conditions and recommendations regarding a future policy are given in the 36-page report, which is arranged in book form. The book also contains 60 photographs, including some views of East Liverpool, which illustrate correct and incorrect planting and also diseases which often are found in shade trees.

Rev. J. W. Springer, pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Emus worth, Pa., will occupy the pulpit of the First United Presbyterian church, Sixth and Jefferson streets, tonight and every night this week. The revival campaign which started last Thursday will end next Sunday.

He will speak on "The Place of Prayer" at tonight's service. There will be special music by the choir under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Ferguson. A vocal solo will be rendered by Miss Wilda Warner.

PRETTY GIRL AND ANOTHER WOMAN SLAIN BY "GAS HAWKS"

One New York Victim Shot Twice, Police Say.

SCREAMS HEARD

Pocketbook, Untouched, Picked up Near Second Body.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Bodies of two well-dressed women, found in snow banks in widely separated parts of the city, today furnished the police with two baffling mysteries.

One of the victims, young and pretty, had been shot twice.

The other, middle-aged, bore no marks of violence.

The police were investigating the possibility that both bodies were thrown from automobiles.

Attacked in Taxicab
The younger woman's body was found by Patrolman Frank Tuller lying on a snow pile on the East Side.

She had been shot through the temple and in the left breast.

The condition of her clothing and the fact that her nose was broken led police to believe she was killed by a man who attempted to attack her in a taxicab.

Several witnesses said they heard a woman's screams and say a speeding taxi shortly before the body was found.

An expensive jeweled pendant was found around her neck. This eliminated the robbery theory.

The girl was about 25, with bobbed auburn hair.

The second body found was that of a woman about 55 years old. It lay on a snow bank in Brooklyn. It was found by a taxi driver. The woman's pocketbook lay beside her, untouched. The police were trying to determine whether she had been thrown from an automobile or killed accidentally while crossing the street.

TWO ARE HURT ON ICY STREET

School Girl and Woman Sustain Fractures in Falls.

Ice-covered sidewalks were responsible for at least two accidents, in which broken bones resulted, in East Liverpool over the week-end.

Miss Margaret Curran, high school junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Curran, 419 John street, sustained a fractured collar bone when she fell while crossing the street in front of the office of Dr. Clyde this morning. Miss Curran was assisting a crippled companion to school when she slipped, her shoulder striking the curb.

The girl was carried into the high school building and later removed to the office of Dr. W. N. Bailey in an automobile. She was afterwards taken to the city hospital where the fracture was reduced.

Mrs. Harry Mulligan, Dresden avenue, sustained a fracture of her right arm Saturday when she fell while walking along St. Clair avenue. She was assisted to the office of Dr. Clyde Larkins. An X-ray examination of the injury was made at the City hospital this morning.

Mrs. Paul Phillips Fractures Leg in Fall on Icy Walk

Mrs. Paul E. Phillips, 812 Morton street, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg this morning when she fell on the icy sidewalk near the McNicol pottery, East Sixth street. She was removed to the City hospital in an automobile. The fracture was reduced by Dr. M. D. McCutcheon.

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

SIXTY-NINE.

Had not Noble Harwood's self-possession been severely shaken by the outbreak he was then attempting to smooth over, he probably would have been able to make less of a disaster of the scene. Lorraine Holly thrust upon him. Coming as it did, her unexpected entrance upon the troubled stage wilted him.

"Why ——" he began, attempting to pull out of the hold she had upon his neck. Laurel, Marion and Lilah looking on with stark astonishment. The attention of nearby guests was being captured.

Noble, in his excitement, committed a fatal error. Louis was nearby and Noble called upon him for aid. He simply wanted to be freed from her grasp; she thought that his call meant that she was going to be thrown out, for despite her befuddlement, she somehow realized that this was the eventuality that was threatened.

"Huh? Give me the skidoo?" she cried, in an alcoholic tone, and pushing away. "No, you don't." She seemed suddenly to have been sobered some, but this was not the case. In a moment she was shrieking.

By now the butler was ready to lay hands upon her. "She must be drunk," Noble said to him, attempting to be diplomatic and explanatory.

The woman had spoken no word to indicate that she meant anything to Noble Harwood, but his wife and daughters, as they stood there watching the scene, intuitively sensed that this was so. Marion and Mrs. Lyons flushed lividly; Laurel, feeling her legs suddenly grow weak, leaned on the former for support.

Noble had succeeded in freeing himself from Lorraine Holly's clutches, but to prevent any worse maudlin disturbance, was helping Louis lead her from the room.

The agonized trio, many pairs of eyes upon them, faltered, and could only walk weakly from the room, the glory the evening had brought to them crumbling in ruins at their feet. This double blow was too crushing to be "smoothed over."

Laurel Todd did not go upstairs. Instead, wrappings, and without realizing it, shivering in the nocturnal chill, she fled out the door and roused the chauffeur nodding at the wheel of Mrs. Daly's car.

"Take me to my mother's place—to Mrs. Wellington Todd's." He was new in Mrs. Daly's service, and he could not have been expected to be familiar with the location of the Todd residence any way, and Laurel had to give him minute instructions. The way in which she gasped them out surprised and disturbed the chauffeur so that in his nervousness he nearly struck another automobile when he turned from Harwood House into the street.

Mrs. Wellington Todd, having returned from the ball early, leaving Berenice to be brought home later by young Jimmy Archer, had been sleeping peacefully for at least two hours when the ringing of the door-bell took her out of bed.

Tense because of her fear that the ring might have come from some one of evil intent, Mother Todd called through the entrance portal, "Who is there?"

"Laurel."

As she unlocked the door, Mother Todd instinctively knew that Laurel was in flight. Perhaps she had been expecting this for a long time. Certainly the possibility had occurred to her. More than once her conscience had disturbed her.

"Oh, mother ——" Laurel burst into sobs as her mother enveloped her in strong, sympathetic arms, at the same time pushing the door shut.

"I know, I know," said the elder woman. Laurel did not think the response strange then.

Slowly they made their way up the stairs and into Mrs. Todd's room. There, kneeling beside her mother, as if at a confessional, Laurel poured out her story. Wounds long since healed reopened and wrung new tears from her willing eyes.

The elder woman remained silent until her daughter gasped out, "Oh, the shame it is!" Then said, "Forget what people are going to say, and think of your happiness. . . . What are you going to do?"

Laurel had run to mother like a hurt child, without any other thought than that her mother would know best. Mrs. Todd's question fell upon her ears strangely. To her weary and aching brain it seemed as if her mother were saying, "You got yourself into this, now you must get yourself out." Laurel got up slowly. "I don't know—I suppose I ought to go away."

"You won't be any more miserable here than you will be away."

"Oh, I never want to see him again."

"Tut, tut. . . . But you must rest. Crawl in bed beside me. Wait. I'll get you a sleeping powder."

Laurel obeyed, but caught her mother's arm. "There's one other thing I want to tell you," she said, a sad reluctance in her eyes.

Mrs. Todd sat down on the edge of the bed. She was unprepared for what was to come.

"I think I am going to be a mother."

"Oh. . . . My poor baby."

G. O. P. TICKET CLARKSBURG MAN LANDS POSITION IS NOMINATED

Mayor Frank Riley
Choice for Second Term.

Mayor Frank Riley, office worker of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, will seek a second term at election on Thursday, March 11, as a result of action taken at a mass meeting of Republican party workers in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' hall, First National bank building, Saturday evening.

A complete ticket, with the exception of candidates for Third ward council and school board member, was named. Theodore Wilson, mail carrier, who was nominated for council, declined because of his position. This place will be filled later.

The nominees, which will represent the G. O. P. on the ballot, are:

Clerk—Edward Garner, paymaster at the American Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Council—First ward, Dennis Linzer, potter; Second ward, John Hobbs, butcher; Fourth ward, Charles H. Davis, mill worker; Fifth ward, John Swindell, packer.

I will pay $100.00 to any person who will secure evidence that will lead to the conviction of the person guilty of poisoning my dog.

M. EVANS, Pughtown, W. Va.

Lloyd D. Griffin of Clarksburg has been appointed assistant banking commissioner and assumed his new duties. It was announced today by State Banking Commissioner H. A. Abbott. At the end of January, Mr. Griffin had served his connection as head of an income tax division under Internal Revenue Collector Ed Braat.

The appointment of Griffin, following that of W. R. Tabler of Parkersburg, recently announced, fills the two vacancies created by the resignations of Hayes Picklesimer and W. B. Holden. The corps of assistant commissioners also includes E. L. Morrison, W. R. Seal, George M. Weekly, Marion Workman, O. S. Summers and Harold Sayre.

Griffin's place in the federal service has been taken by William H. Cole, a former mayor of Clarksburg and former sheriff of Harrison county.

HIGHWAY WORK TO BE DEFERRED

Work on improving the stretch of roadway between Chester and the Pennsylvania state line which was planned for this year will probably be deferred until the work is completed on the other end of the highway.

This move will be made necessary, it is stated, by the fact that contractors who will be in charge of the big improvement job will be required to have their supplies shipped to Chester and will have to use this road to reach the work.

URGE FARMERS TO GROW OWN SEED

E. S. Bayard, editor of the National Stockman and Farmer, while in attendance at the annual Farmers' Week at Morgantown advocated that that West Virginia farmers grow their own seed.

In his opinion, this could be successfully done at many of the higher altitudes of the state. Mr. Bayard mentioned Preston county and Mineral county as being well suited for such a project. He feels that the present movement throughout the state on the part of the farmers to secure native grown rather than imported seed is a good one and will result in greatly increased crop.

His reason for advocating that an effort be made to produce much of the seed locally was that the higher altitudes of the state approximate the same climatic conditions as those farther north where much of the native seed is grown, with the additional advantage that seed produced within the state would not only be adapted as to climate conditions but more nearly so as to selling conditions. He also maintained that this would keep many thousands of dollars in the state that would otherwise have to be sent out for seeds.

PASTOR CONDUCTS REVIVAL MEETS

Evangelistic services will be held every evening this week in the First Methodist Episcopal church in charge of Rev. R. C. Ehrheart. The meetings yesterday were largely attended.

The sermon subject tonight will be: "Whatever a Man Soweth That Shall He Also Reap." The meetings will close next Sunday.

Queen Esther Class Meeting. Members of the Queen Esther class of the Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Charles Mansfield, Phoenix avenue.

The business session will be followed by a social hour.

EAST END

SPECIAL MEETS DRAW LARGELY

Large crowds attended the services yesterday in the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church where special meetings are being conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Stokes.

Services will be held every night this week with the exception of Saturday. Special music will be featured.

Lodgement To Meet. Members of Pennova lodge No. 880, I. O. O. F., will meet in regular session Thursday evening in their rooms in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Business matters will be discussed.

GRAND JURY TO MEET MARCH 15

Members of the Hancock county grand jury will report for duty at New Cumberland on Monday, March 8. Large number of cases are being prepared for investigation by Prosecuting Attorney Thomas S. Hoffman.

Petit jurors will report one week later when trials will begin before Judge J. Harold Brennan of Wheeling, who will preside during the term.

Revival Launched. Rev. H. N. Dickerson, of Ashland, Ky., opened a series of evangelistic meetings yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Nazarene. Services will be held every night for several weeks. Prayer services will precede the preaching each night.

Vestry to Meet. Officers will be elected this evening at a meeting of vestrymen of the St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church. Number of other matters will be taken up for discussion at this session.

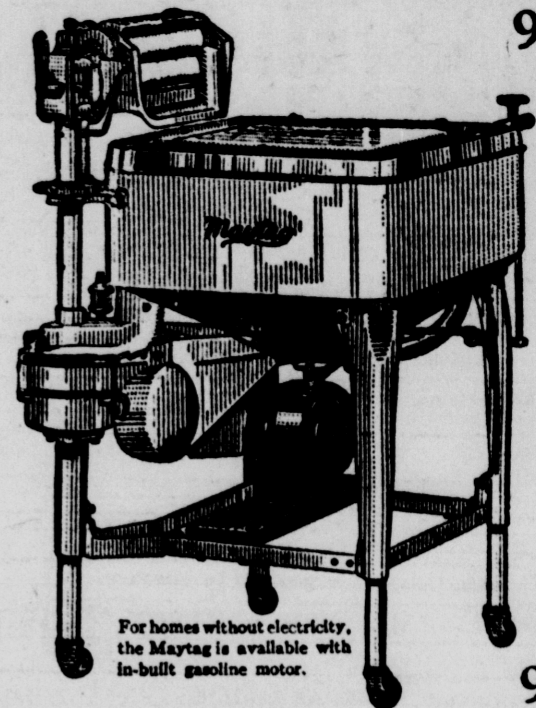

BEAVER ROADS TO BE IMPROVED

Announcement is expected to be made this week by the Pennsylvania state highway department of an additional number of roads to be improved this summer in the western section of the state including several in Beaver county. Program presented to the state officials several weeks ago by members of the county commissioners at Harrisburg.

Scouts in Jamboree. Members of the East End Boy Scout troop will participate in the district jamboree to be held this evening in the Y. M. C. A. Members of the various troops from the entire district will take in a series of events arranged by the executive council.

P. H. C. Meeting. Regular meeting of Eureka circle No. 86, Protected Home Circle, will be held tomorrow evening in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

Song Service Here. Song service was featured last night at the services in the Second Presbyterian church when a number of old time hymns were sang under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Ferguson.

DINING ROOM SUITES $112 to $185

This seems the popular price range in dining room suites and for that reason we feature them for February Sale. Not a suite in the lot that is not $50 under price, and some as much $85 less than the regular retail prices—if it is "buying time" for you, this is an opportunity to select from a wonderful showing—and to save a handsome sum of dollars.

LIVING ROOM SUITES $145, $200 and $275

Another big shipment just unloaded and placed on sample. These are the most exceptional values we have ever shown—we are enthusiastic about them and so are our customers if we can judge by the quantity selling.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1926.

Safety Week Observance Here

The Lions' club should have the co-operation of the pedestrian as well as the motorist in the proposed observance of Safety Week in East Liverpool—a campaign that has for its purpose a decrease in the appalling toll of life and injuries exacted in traffic accidents.

The police department and school officials have pledged their aid in the movement, in which the safety of the city's 5,500 school children is to be emphasized.

Where to put the automobiles is a pressing problem in every growing city. Yet the question where to put the pedestrians is becoming still more pressing.

The streets are there for the cars to run on. It is a problem of more and wider and straighter streets, with rounder corners, and of providing, in some miraculous way, more space for parking. Engineers can take care of that, given enough scope and money.

But the pedestrians? They multiply, if possible, more rapidly than the motor cars. They are always getting in the way of those cars. They swarm over every crossing, and between crossing. They overflow the sidewalks. They and the cars have got to be kept apart, for mutual safety, on the streets and on bridges and other passageways. How is that to be accomplished? The answer is a common sense observance of rules of safety on the part of men, women and children who use the streets.

The Pie Champion

Would you believe it? When they held a champion pie contest at a state food show in Cincinnati the other day, the first prize was won by a man. No, not a pie-eating contest—a pie-baking contest. The winner wasn't a professional, either, but a mere husband and business man.

The pie was an apple pie, of such incredible delicacy, lusciousness and substantial merit that nobody has yet had the nerve to attempt a verbal description. The artist who made it is Henry J. Krohne. There was a sensational denouement when the judges, solemnly awarding the prize of a $125 clothes drier to Mrs. Krohne, were told by that modest housewife that it was not she, but Henry, who deserved the drier and the glory.

Henry, you see, has a flair for pies. He discovered it by accident one time, and now he bakes them all. Mrs. Krohne does the rest of the baking and cooking, but never touches a pie. She is an intelligent woman, and knows and respects genius when she sees it. As for Henry, he has a lovely time making those pies—not to mention eating them. But Henry is modest. He shrinks from the fame that has come to him.

This little story is passed on for the benefit of a sex that is threatened with eclipse in this feminine age. Man lives by food. Man is what he eats. The crown of culinary perfection is a good apple pie. A man makes the best apple pie—in Ohio, at least. In how many another home and state is there a masculine talent blushing unseen?

Let genius be sought for and recognized. Give man a chance at the rolling pin and pastry-board. Bigger, better pies are our slogan, and we must have them even though it drags men from the office, the factory or the professorial chair.

Putting Youth In Opera

Feodor Chaliapin, the great Russian singer, is planning to go on the road, not in personal concert tours, but with an opera produced and managed by himself. He has chosen the "Barber of Seville" for his first attempt. Later he expects to write an opera and produce that.

The most interesting thing about his enterprise is not the fact that a star plans to go into opera production. It lies in the methods he expects to use. Chaliapin explains:

"Long ago I conceived the idea of touring in a single opera, appearing in big cities and in smaller places as well. But the producers offered me old scenery—and old singers. Impossible! I insist upon youth. No worn out sopranos and tenors for me. I will be the oldest in my company—and I will be the boss. Maybe I boast, but it will be the finest production you have ever seen."

Humble opera-enjoyers, living far from the great music centers but wishing for an opportunity to hear good opera often, have sometimes thought that opera was really handicapped by traditional matters of production. New scenery, youthful singers and actors, fresh inspiration for the whole thing, might do the cause of opera much good and thereby increase popular enjoyment of it "in big cities and in smaller places."

Courts And Business

An eminent lawyer speaking to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World says: "Not for a generation have the courts, the administration and the American public been so friendly toward business, both big and little, as they are today. The supreme court decisions last June in the trade association cases were epoch-making. They breathed a keener appreciation of American economic forces and a greater sympathy for resulting business conditions than the supreme court had evinced since 1911, when the court first read the 'rule of reason' into the anti-trust laws."

Those who fear Florida may be over-crowded might go to Northern British Columbia or Alaska instead. It is reported that those places are "suffering from lack of their usual winter snow."

The Little Scorpion's Club—

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. MCINTYRE

AT SEA, Feb. 8.—We are aboard a coast-wise steamer headed for Florida to be sunk—or maybe it is in California you get that—and meet the realtors. New York shivered in the chill of winter. A few trees in Madison Square were furred with snow.

A muffled young man on 23d street trudged along with skates over his arm. I was tempted to yell "Yoo hoo!" and wave a pair of white flannel trousers. He will be entitled to his laugh perhaps, later when a mosquito selects my wan cheek for a sinking spell.

My interest in the steamer centered upon a thin, pale professorial young man with a bleached Van Dyke. He reminded one of those scholarly fellows kodaked in pith helmets poking around the Egyptian pyramids in the travel magazines.

He had the detached aloofness of a Pom on the front seat of a limousine with a liveried chauffeur. At night he was a solitary star-drinker on the promenade deck. He went the way of all illusions when he proved to be the leader of a New York jazz band being imported to Florida.

He swung the baton for "mammy" tunes. A Broadway touch was provided by the chorus and principals of a revue pageant on the way to a coast resort to enliven visiting firemen. A dark, Spanish and vampish lady was known among the troupe as "The Mexican Wildcat."

She whirled away the tedium of deck loungers by promenade with a hairless chihuahua encased in sweaters the hue of her frocks. And a little pony chorine from "Gawgaw" was so happy over returning south she hopped about like a jumping bean.

Once she skipped away with a "Good-bye, you all," tripped over a door sill and did a complete somersault without missing a puff of her cigarette. "All in her act" wise-cracked the comedian of the company. The ship is an old but seaworthy trans-Atlantic liner that ploughs through a placid sea.

Will Hogg, who is in our party, brought along King Jet, a magnificent black Persian cat, and Bonzo, a dog of whose genealogy I am in doubt. I am inclined to suspect a scandal in her family. She rears the coat around by the neck and otherwise annoys him, but he suffers the silence of the well bred. My Boston has formed a rather unusual attachment for the chief butcher. His motives I imagine are altogether ulterior. After all he was reared in New York.

The captain is a genial and hardy Swede whose talk explodes like a bottle of pop. He pounces into the dining room at intervals to make "get together" speeches. He is a rather wholesome relief from the usual stiff and starchy liner captains. "Vat I want is it you should get acquainted. We are just one big family," he Weber-fields over and over again.

No ocean voyage is complete these days without an official souce. Ours is a tall, black-haired young man who got on—or rather was poured on—at the New York pier. The advance guard of realtors are aboard and he hunts them out with: "What I want is a big roomy room that is roomy." If it keeps it up he will need such a room to park a headache.

Most of the three-day voyagers are usual tourist types—retired mid-west farmers and their wives, elderly spinsters who are climate chasers, bridal couples and the usual followers of every new booming Eldorado. Some are going to Florida to remain, others to loiter on the sand and others are peopled with the frenzy of fortune hunting. One day out and they are talking in millions. Tomorrow it will be billions. And by the time we arrive they will turn their collars—and take the first job that comes along.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Hawaii Prospers

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—In marked contrast to his rather pessimistic and deprecating remarks concerning the Territory of Alaska, Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work calls a new tune in his statements about the Territory of Hawaii in his annual report. Pessimism gives way to optimism and uneasiness to enthusiasm in this section of the Secretary's report which reviews the life and progress of Hawaii in 1925.

Basing his statements upon the report of Wallace R. Farrington, Governor of Hawaii, Secretary Work begins his remarks by saying: "The Territory has enjoyed a steady growth and continued prosperity and quite the most striking feature of the year's progress, 1924-25, is the widespread recognition of the strategic importance of the harbors of the principal islands to the Nation and in the service of the developing commerce of the great Pacific area. Progress of the agricultural industries is very gratifying. The sugar and pineapple enterprises have harvested the largest crop on record. The sale price of both sugar and canned pineapples has ruled lower than the previous year, but the total income of the Territory is not materially reduced. The coffee industry has held its own through many vicissitudes and now offers a fair prospect of advancement on account of the distinctive and attractive quality of the Kona brand."

In the 25 years that Hawaii has been a Territory of the United States it has paid into the Federal Treasury an amount in excess of $117,000,000. During the past year it paid more than $7,500,000, and, as there is a rapid growth in population and a great advance in the development of the Territory, it is not unreasonable to believe that in the future. The prosperity and financial soundness of the people were reflected in the bank deposits of $61,000,000, the highest on record, although the savings accounts were slightly less than the previous year. The Governor of Hawaii and Secretary Work account for this phenomenon by the people who are the biggest savings depositors investing heavily in homes.

Death Rate Declines

Hawaii seems to enjoy good health. Its shrinking death rate and its increasing birth rate indicate a healthy condition. There has been no serious epidemic in the Territory during the past year, which attests to the excellent sanitary condition of the islands. This is more striking when it is considered that the ports are in an extremely exposed position in relation to trans-Pacific traffic. Tuberculosis continues to take the heaviest toll of any disease. Measures and regulations for the control and cure of leprosy are having an excellent effect.

The labor situation in Hawaii is favorable. The year witnessed the rise and fall of a disturbance among Filipino laborers which was designed to bring about a general walk-out on the sugar plantations by the workers. This, however, failed to crystallize because of the widespread contentment prevailing among the laborers. These people are well cared for and have been given liberal programs for increasing their incomes through planting contracts. There is at present no shortage of labor in the main industries. The agitation among the sugar planters was said to be the work of Japanese newspapers.

There is no other sugar-producing country in the world where the laborers and their families are better cared for and better paid or better rewarded for their work than Hawaii. Likewise there is new opportunity for the small farmer who wishes to set himself up in the islands. There are homestead tracts which are confined principally to the fertile lands on the island of Molokai, under the administration of the Hawaiian Homes Commission. This continues to show every promise of success.

There is also another favorable condition in the cooperation between the officers of the Territory and the small farmers in the matter of financing their crops. The officers lend their assistance in obtaining favorable terms from the mill owners and the cannery men and in securing loans at low interest. By these methods the small growers are materially aided in producing their crops.

Need More Port Facilities
The importance of the Hawaiian Islands as a center of Pacific business is evidenced by the increased amount of tonnage entering their ports. This tonnage is increasing at a steady rate. In order that the Territory may do its part in facilitating the commerce of its own and other people the harbors of the islands must be improved and made easily accessible for the liners that touch there. The principal harbors have to be protected by breakwaters, where these are needed, and by dredging. This work is a responsibility of the Federal Government and it falls to the lot of Congress to make the proper appropriations for its prosecution.

Moreover port facilities must be modernized. Docks must be built and equipped so as to give quick dispatch. This is the duty of the Territorial government and it is proceeding to accomplish it through funds obtained from public-improvement bonds.

The population of the islands on January 1, 1920, as shown by the fourteenth census of the United States, was 255,912. The population in 1910 was 191,909. The increase during the intervening decade was 64,003, or 33.4 per cent. The increase since 1920, however, has been much greater. On June 30, 1925, the population of the islands showed a greater increase over the population of 1920 than that year did over 1910. On the 1925 date a census disclosed 323,645 people living in the islands. This is an increase of 67,733 in five and one-half years since the official census.

There are nine islands in the Archipelago that are inhabited. These are Hawaii, the largest and having the most population, Maui, Oahu, Kauai, Molokai, Lanai, Niihau, Kahoolawe, and Midway. There are also a number of small, uninhabited islands.

The population of the Territory is extremely heterogeneous. The following is the distribution of races according to the census of 1920: Hawaiian, 23,723; Asiatic Hawaiian, 6,995; Caucasian Hawaiian, 11,072; Portuguese, 27,002; Porto Rican, 5,602; Spanish, 24,300; other Caucasian, 19,708; Chinese, 23,507; Japanese, 109,274; Filipino, 21,031; Korean, 4,950; Negro, 343; all others 310.

In education, public health, and sanitation great progress has been made in Hawaii. The prosperity and general good condition of the Territory gives promise of interesting and profitable development in the future.

Echols-Larcombe Wedding, Solemnized Saturday, Announced

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Mildred Echols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Echols of Daisy avenue, to Charles Larcombe, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Larcombe of Riverview street. The ceremony was performed Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the parsonage of the Presbyterian church of Lisbon, with Rev. P. W. Macaulay officiating. The attendants were Miss Dorothy Larcombe, a sister of the bridegroom, and Leonard Echols, a brother of the bride.

The bride was gowned in green charmeuse, with hat to match, and her corsage was of sweetpeas and bride's roses. The maid-of-honor wore tan canton crepe with hat to match, and carried roses and sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the home of the bride's parents, covers being arranged for the members of the immediate families. Centering the table was a wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom, from which streamers of pink and white ribbon were attached to a heart-shaped bonbon basket and cupids at each place. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. James Larcombe Sr., Mrs. Mary Granger of Trenton, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. William Townley, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Neal, Mr. and Mrs. William Echols and daughters, Misses Nina and Florence, Leonard Neal, Albert and Miss Nina Townley.

Mr. and Mrs. Larcombe will reside near Stop 55 on the Y. & O.

YOUR HEALTH

Neat and Clean Dress
Aids Physical Well Being

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHAT about a hair cut and a shave, a shoe shine and a fresh crease in your trousers? You are feeling down and out. Things aren't going right. You can see and think nothing but disaster.

You have permitted your hair to get long and shaggy. Your necktie is crumpled. Your shoes are shabby and run down at the heel.

No wonder you have lost ambition and enthusiasm and perhaps your job, too. You can't look like a tramp all the time without acting like one. Nobody wants to associate with a trampish-looking person.

I honor the men and women who do the world's labor. They must dress accordingly. Of course.

But they never fail to clean up and dress neatly after working hours.

No matter how poor you are, you can make yourself presentable. Unless you are spruced up, you will lose your self respect. What we call "personality magnetism" will come away if person and dress are neglected.

Foppishness and over-dressing are to me almost as offensive as neglect of dress. There is a middle ground, however, which should be popular with everybody.

Nothing is more important to the physical welfare than to have the right mental attitude. Unless the mind is at peace with the world, there are restlessness, unhappiness, worry and too many times thoughts of suicide.

You will be astonished, if you haven't thought of it, how the mind is influenced by the manner of dress. If you don't believe it, get your hair cut, put on your good clothes, have your shoes polished and walk down the busiest street.

You will find yourself looking in the shop windows, not to study the display but to admire your own reflection. You will hold your head higher, breathe deeper and step more vigorously than for days before.

Many individuals are cocky because they are well-dressed and know they are well-dressed. You may not like such folks, and probably don't like them, but they are happy and consequently they are healthy.

Almost the most important thing in a successful health program is a placid mind. There can be no placidity without self-respect, and it is surprising, perhaps, but verily true, that the reflex effect of the dress has a powerful effect upon the mental processes.

Bear in mind the advice of Polonius to Laertes:

Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not expressed in fancy; rich,
not gaudy;
For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

BRITAIN URGES BUYING PUBLIC
TRADE AT HOME

Market Never More Important Than Now, is Claim.

LESS IDLENESS

Appeal Made to Hasten Prosperity for Empire.

LONDON.—"Buy British Goods and Trade Will Improve" is the slogan put forth by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the board of trade, to the British public.

Sir Philip is optimistic as to the future of British industrial prosperity. He gives three reasons for his hopes:

1.—Less unemployment in many industries.

2.—A new sense of security and peace in Europe.

3.—A steadily growing national recognition of the importance of the home market.

"The home market," says Sir Philip, "has never been more important than it is today. Export trade cannot exist without it. It is necessary to enable us to produce cheaply and yield a surplus."

Imperial Development.

"I welcome the growing recognition of the vast possibilities of Imperial development. Before the war the Empire sent us less than 25 per cent of the total volume of our imports; today they send us more than 29 per cent and the trade is growing and growing fast."

Imperial trade has become the policy by common consent within the Empire, and if a vote were taken it would be found that there is an overwhelming majority in every part of the Empire in favor of Imperial Preference and not the least in Britain.

"The government is anxious and willing to help trade to the utmost capacity, and I urge manufacturers to study the markets and foster new demands from them. Where it is found that industries are losing trade to foreign competitors, I urge the consideration of combined selling organizations in markets where we are being undersold, also combined publicity. 'I look forward to increased commercial prosperity and the outlook for the future is more than bright.'"

Assisting Trade.

Some of the great business concerns of Britain are following the lead of the government in assisting scientifically Britain's trade.

The London and North Eastern railway, practically the largest in Britain, has put a new clause in its contracts relating to goods produced from manufactured steel. It states that these goods: "must be of British manufacture from steel of British manufacture throughout."

This decision has now been followed by all the other great railroad companies.

Each year the British rail companies spend about $260,000,000 on rolling stock, permanent way and improvement. The decision means that henceforward all this sum will have to be spent in Britain and that American tenders will be ruled out. Some experts estimate that this means giving employment to 110,000 more men.

Prospects Hopeful.

Another optimist with regard to British trade is M. J. Sandenian Allen, M. P., chairman of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce.

"Trade prospects," he says in an address to his members, "are more hopeful than they have been for a long time past."

"There is more confidence, and more orders are being placed, not in one, but in many trades, than for a long time past. India has become more settled. Egypt is quiet, and we have re-established our commercial relations with Mexico."

"Trade is improving in our colonies, particularly in East and West Africa. The lifting of the embargo on foreign loans has done good. . . . People are now investing more freely and not locking their money up as before."

Crating for automobiles to be shipped from this to other countries this year will require more than 74,000,000 feet of lumber.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purgative" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the

HIGH DEFEATED
AT CARROLLTON

Drop 26-10 Decision
in Saturday
Game.

Unable to locate the baskets consistently, Wellsville high school passers were defeated Saturday night at Carrollton by the score of 26 to 10.

The defensive tactics of the Carrollton team was one of the outstanding features of the engagement. The home crew permitted the Orange and Black but three field goals, two of which were registered by Wilson, who substituted for Hunter, and the other by Calhoun.

Scott, Carrollton forward, was high point maker, with five field goals and three fumbles, half his team's score.

Both the boys' and the girls' teams will be in action on Friday night at Columbus. An additional contest this week with Chester is under consideration.

MURPHY DEFEATS
HILL AMENDMENT

Upholding prohibition and provisions of the Volstead law according to the policy he announced in his last public appearance in Wellsville, on the occasion of an address before the Kiwanis club, Congressman Frank Murphy, of St. Paul, Saturday led the attack on the proposed Hill amendment increasing a deficiency appropriation for the United States coast guard from $3,900,000 to $14,994,000 in its fight on rum runners, stirring the house to an uproarious demonstration. The amendment was defeated, 110 to 8.

Murphy asserted the motherhood of the country is being maligned in reply to charges of Representative Sabbath, of Illinois, that the present prohibition laws are responsible for crime conditions and the debauching of boys and girls throughout the land.

"Advocates of nullification of the eighteenth amendment," said Mr. Murphy, "are charging that the children of America are being debauched by reason of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. The motherhood of the country is being maligned as it never was before by that contemptible kind of villification—that our young girlhood and womanhood is not as clean, sweet, and wholesome as it was in the days of our mothers."

"Of all contemptible arguments that have been put forth to justify changing this law, that of all, is the lowest down. There is no place in hell quite deep enough for it."

"I am advocating only an increase in this appropriation for law enforcement," interrupted Mr. Hill.

"The gentleman is not sincere and never was sincere," the Ohioan fired back.

TUESDAY NIGHT

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church will convene tomorrow evening at the church. A cordial supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

The regular meeting of the organization will follow at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Bruce Weaver as leader. Mrs. Samuel Dushman will have charge of the devotionals.

SET HIGH MARK
IN ATTENDANCE

Teachers and students of the local public school system will have a high mark to shoot at this month in the matter of attendance.

Students will have to show an average of better than 95 per cent throughout the entire system to hang up a new record. The 95 per cent rating was reached in January and a half-holiday for all the pupils was their reward.

Youth Kills Two, Wounds Seven, in 12-Hour Siege

Barreling himself in the house shown in the photograph, Clinton W. Hollingsworth, 20-year-old youth, held off a posse of police and citizens of Springfield, Mo., for 12 hours, killing two and wounding seven in the siege before he finally surrendered because he ran out of ammunition. The flashlight picture of the house shows the crowd that gathered after the smoke of the gun battle had cleared. Police found a young arsenal in the house after they had captured the youth. He is being held in jail pending a hearing on the murder charges.

WAR MOVIE HERE

Plans for the presentation of a moving picture portraying the story of the World war, will be discussed at a meeting of Corporal Dan Duty post, No. 180, Veterans of Foreign Wars, tonight at their headquarters in upper Main street.

Commander William Dolby announced today that the local post expects to present "Men of Purpose" at the high school auditorium Feb. 22-23. Tickets will be placed on sale by the Ladies' auxiliary.

INDIANS BURROW
FOR QUICKSILVER

Alpine, Texas.—Burrowing in the rugged mountains of southwest Texas, stolid Indians today are mining for its treasure of quicksilver, the blood-red ore their forefathers used as war paint.

The miners live in villages that are silent as the tomb. Far beneath the surface they spend their waking hours taking from the hills a heritage which civilization discovered and claims as its own.

Tarlinque and Waldron, 90 miles from a railroad, are the center of a district where the expected opening of a new mine may give Texas first rank in the United States' production of quicksilver. The state now ranks second.

For thirty years hardy men have been undermining the mountains for the cinnabar ore from which mercury is extracted. One company has produced $10,000,000 worth of shimmering metal during the last quarter of a century.

The miners are Indians and Mexicans and the villages are of adobe huts. During the day, while the men are in the ground, the women remain in the houses and silence is rarely broken. The streets between the rows of squat dwellings are deserted except for the occasional appearance of an Indian woman carrying water in two rawhide buckets suspended from a pole across her shoulder, in primitive fashion.

One of the mines contains an immense cavern, which is reached by a 50-foot ladder, placed there years ago by the primitive tribes. The surrounding bluffs are decorated with many Indian pictographs and hieroglyphs in red pigment.

Mule Colt to Replace
Texas' Old Gray Mare

Brownwood, Texas.—A small brown mule may take the place of the old gray mare in the affections of Texas Legionnaires. Sarah, for five years mascot of the Old Gray Mare band, died suddenly and left as her heir and offspring, a mule colt.

The old gray mare attended the American Legion conventions in San Francisco and St. Paul, besides numerous conventions in Texas. She reached the climax in her career when she bore May Peterson, former prima donna of the Metropolitan Grand Opera company, up the steps of the Texas capitol at Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's inauguration.

Sarah was one of the most traveled animals in America. She usually rode in a specially constructed box car. Once while en route to San Francisco the band stopped at Denver for a rest, leaving Sarah loose in the car. The band struck up the "Old Gray Mare" tune just outside the car, and Sarah, thinking it was her cue, jumped from the car and placed herself in her customary position at the head of the band.

CRIPPLED LADS FIGHT FOR BOY
SCOUT HONOR BADGE; GET IT

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—What can a feller do if Fate, in handing out backs, deals him a crooked one?

Or if Fate, in handing out legs and arms, deals him ones that do not function in the regular way? Or if normal back, legs and arms are denied him through accident?

One upon a time Harry Weyle and Joe Julliano here asked themselves those questions.

But just the other day Harry and Joe stood side by side with other boys in the largest court of honor ever held in Rochester and received achievement badges for Boy Scout work—awards made especially to crippled Boy Scouts who have met the requirements of the organization. They correspond to the Golden Eagle Scout award for physically whole boys—for it is the highest award that can be given to a crippled Boy Scout. Only seven of these badges have been awarded in the whole United States.

Back of the award of these badges lies a story. Both boys owe their rise not only to their own pluck, but also to the world-famed Rochester School for Crippled Children.

Infantile paralysis had brought Joe's affliction. His only way of locomotion was to lie flat on his stomach and drag himself along by the manipulation of his elbows.

Joe was sent to the School for Crippled Children.

Doctors and dietitians took hold of his case. He spent weeks in the hospital, there were a number of operations, and finally there came the happy day when Joe could walk on crutches. Life became happy and free.

Harry Weyle, besides having been crippled in babyhood by infantile paralysis, was considerably handicapped by bad habits.

Today Harry has a gleam before him of a professional career and he is following that gleam with a persistence and courage. He is in junior high school making a clean-cut record and his love of Scout work is no less intense than that of Joe Julliano.

There are no restrictions now on the manufacture of corn sugar, but under the pure food act, all products in which corn sugar is used must be specially branded and labeled to show that corn sugar and not beet or cane sugar was used.

This restriction, it is asserted, has proved a great handicap to the marketing of corn sugar, as the enforced labeling is asserted to carry with it "the stigma of inferiority."

In order to remove this restriction a bill has been introduced in the senate by Senator Cummins (Rep., Iowa) and in the house by Representative Cole (Rep., Iowa). The bill provides for amending the pure food law so that corn sugar products will be added to the list of articles that are not deemed misbranded if not specially labeled.

To the farmers of Iowa and Illinois, who have been forced to accept low prices for corn, largely because of the surplus, increased manufacture of corn sugar would offer a new market for larger quantities of corn. Already thousands of letters have been sent to mid-western congressmen and to the Department of Agriculture urging the immediate passage of legislation which will remove the present restrictions on the sale of corn sugar products.

"If the restrictions are removed and corn sugar can be marketed in large quantities, it means that the total yearly surplus of corn will be sold to food manufacturing plants," Mr. Cole declared. "This undoubtedly would mean increased prosperity for the whole corn belt."

The Department of Agriculture is not so sure that the proposed change in the pure food act would be a good thing. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine is giving close study to the problem, and while anxious to see the sale of corn sugar exploited, he is undecided as to whether changing the pure food law is the best way to do it.

Growth of the use of electric power is transferring the making of watches in Switzerland from the homes of factories.

30 ENTRANTS IN AMERICAN VENUS CONTEST

"Miss Columbian" Will be Chosen at Ceramic.

ONE MORE DAY

Girls, Compare Your Measurement With Miss Lanphier's.

Entry list in the Review-Tribune's competition to find the "American Venus" in Columbiana county will close tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. More than 30 young women have entered their names with Mrs. Hazel Mast, contest editor, who will act as supervisor and judge.

This contest, which has aroused great interest, is being held in connection with the showing of the film, "The American Venus," which opened today at the Ceramic theatre, with Miss Fay Lanphier, who won the national beauty contest last September in Atlantic City, appearing in the title role.

The contestant whose measurements come closest to that of "Miss America" (Miss Lanphier) will be designated as "Miss Columbian," and will be awarded a bronze statuette and $25.

A motion picture pass for two persons good for three months to the Ceramic theatre will be the second award.

A three months' subscription to Review-Tribune is the third prize.

Tree Survey Report

Chamber of Commerce. This committee included: Wilson Smith, chairman; John Kell, Joseph T. Croxall, Lee C. Cooper and Ralph Couch. This was the first attempt to obtain a comprehensive report of conditions in East Liverpool and so far as is known where such a complete report has been made for any city in the state.

The object was to determine the outstanding needs of the community with respect to the existing trees and the future planting.

"Under the present system of management the city government has control only of trees which are within the boundaries of parks and other city property, or those adjacent there to in streets and alleys," the report says. "Trees along streets and avenues in general are at all intents and purposes the property of adjacent owners, and are in their hands for planting and subsequent care."

Too Many Silver Maples.

"The selection of species, conditions and care of street trees in East Liverpool are about the average as found in Ohio cities. There are no outstanding examples of early street plantings which might be termed ideal from the aspect of choice of species or arrangement. Like most every village and city in Ohio, East Liverpool streets were early overplanted with the silver or soft maple, and the error in such choice of species is obvious in the general appearance and condition of the silver maple trees. These silver maples were early chosen by nurserymen as a street tree of merit, because of its rapid growth. Aside from this feature and a fairly good appearing foliage, the species has nothing to recommend it.

"The street trees as well as the general appearance of the streets as a whole would have been improved had the trees in most cases been set wider apart. However this is a common error in all early shade tree plantings in practically every village and city. It is now difficult to practice thinning of many of the East Liverpool streets, although there is ample opportunity for this kind of work.

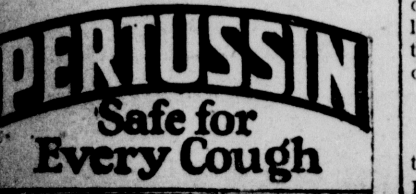

"An example of a well conceived and designed planting plan is found surrounding the Carnegie library. On Thompson hill is a line of European plane trees recently planted. These trees are planted about 13 feet apart, and are well and adequately protected from street injury by metal tree guards. The European plane is a splendid tree with few objectionable features. Thompson park, splendidly located, will undoubtedly grow in popularity for recreation in the near future. The area contains some fine trees, and considerable development work has been undertaken in the way of shrubbery and flower planting. It is suggested that a few red oak or scarlet oak shade trees be placed in the more open spaces. This will intersperse some long lived trees in the plantings, which eventually will be places of struggle where it cannot survive. History is full of hangings, quarterings, bonfires, beheadings that tell of the man or woman of pure gold used in the wrong place.

Poor Joan of Arc, burned alive when her work was done—she represents an attempt to make an incisor of pure gold. She lasted as long as she could—but she could not last. Pere Marquette was another of the pure gold being worn away because they were too good for the world's conditions. Giordano Bruno was another. The man who really invented the sewing machine is never heard of. He consented to give up his idea and forego all profit when his wife pointed out to him that his discovery meant starvation for thousands of poor sewing women—his was of pure gold—but too soft for this world.

Some man, perhaps, will find a way of hardening gold so that its absolute purity and atomic integrity will be able to fight against the baser and harder metals.

That is guesswork. But this is sure and no guesswork: Humanity in time will devise such protection for its members, such recognition of high merit, as will make it possible even for a man of pure golden character to survive and succeed against the material conditions of life. When that day comes we shall have our real leaders and our true teachers. We shall no longer look always to some tragic failure for our inspiration. Today it is the martyr's death, the room where Socrates drank his poison, the streets where Savonarola was hooted by the men he died for that remind us of our few men made of pure gold.

Some day, like the pure gold filling in the solid black tooth with its walls of enamel, the golden men will find conditions that protect them. Speed the day.

And meanwhile—have a kindly feeling and a kind word for the man who has failed at his work. Perhaps he has been worn away because his character is truer, purer than yours.

Many a failure with sad eyes and hopeless look would have been among the world's successes had his metal been less pure.

Did you ever think of the number of successes due to bad qualities, the great fortunes built on base metal?

Very satisfactory for summer shade as well as an enhancement of the beauty of the park.

Reference to City Park

There is a newly acquired area adjacent to the City hospital of about one and one half acres, which is practically undeveloped. Situated as it is near the heart of the city it will undoubtedly serve a considerable number of people during each summer season. Owing to its proximity to the hospital it use as a children's playground would be impractical.

"A small parcel of land now vacant near the city reservoir can be planted with the common varieties of shrubbery with such trees as red oak, scarlet oak or oriental plane. While the slopes are steep it is impossible to place rest benches within the area and beautify the place in a way that it would be an attractive spot for that section of the city.

"Tree surgery or tree repair has been employed to some extent in East Liverpool and in many cases has been helpful in the care of trees. An especially important feature of this work is that of pruning. In this connection it seems well to call attention to the pernicious practice of "topping" trees. This practice is no more common in East Liverpool than elsewhere, but there are evidences of its employment."

Committee Recommendations

Along the line of recommendations the report says:

"To beautify a city by street and park plantings requires a plan of concerted and harmonious effect, and a definite knowledge of all the principles involved. Under present conditions in East Liverpool property owners are permitted to determine the status of tree planting along the street by virtue of their rights as abutters. Under municipal control not only can trees be selected for new plantings with proper attention to variable soil with moisture requirements, smoke and gas conditions, proper spacing and uniformity, but general insect control can prevail and proper protection and management can be given to the existing trees. While East Liverpool is at present remarkably free from injurious insects, no one has the right to assume that this condition will prevail, hence any plans for the future should include adequate provision for this part of the work. Municipal control of shade trees is not an innovation in this country. Many cities, particularly in the east and some in Ohio, have adopted this plan, and it is eminently satisfactory.

Close Planting Unsatisfactory.

"Close planting in East Liverpool is one of the most unsatisfactory features to contend with. It is far better to have one well developed tree of beautiful characteristic form in front of a property than half a dozen unsightly decrepit individuals. The promiscuous stringing of wires of various kinds throughout the tree crowns along the streets has caused damage to some of the trees in East Liverpool in the course of time. There is a tendency in some cases to prune the tops out of trees to accommodate the wires. This, of course, is a malpractice which should not be countenanced."

The report suggests the enactment of legislation by the council regulating planting and placing supervision and care of shade trees in the hands of city officials. A fine of $100 for wilful damaging of trees and shrubbery would be provided by the ordinance, it is pointed out. Establishment of a municipal nursery where trees and shrubbery for use within the city could be grown is also suggested.

Urges More Beautiful City.

In conclusion the report says: "We desire to express our appreciation to the representatives of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce and

New national Episcopal cathedral, in Washington, D. C., will be first "radio cathedral." A committee of experts headed by Maj. Gen. George O. Squier, inset, army signal corps, is advising the constructors regarding probable developments in wireless technique that they be structurally anticipated in the erection of the edifice, a part of which now is complete and radio-equipped.

SCOT EDITOR TRAIN VICTIM

Herbert Graham Dies When Express Wrecks His Auto.

LYNDBROOK, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Herbert Graham, editor of the Lloyd C. Griscom publications on Long Island, and well-known to Scots throughout the country as editor of "The Scottish American," was killed early today when a Long Island Railroad train struck his automobile.

The body is being held, awaiting word from Graham's relatives in Kentucky.

Graham apparently did not see the swiftly moving train. He drove his car directly onto the tracks. The train struck his car squarely in the middle, throwing it 50 feet against the side of a freight car on a siding.

Two years ago "The Scottish American," under Graham's leadership, attempted to raise $100,000 for the relief of famine conditions affecting 30,000 residents in Scotland.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—A good volume of selling orders awaited the opening of the market today as a result of the unexpected large aggregation of brokers' loans disclosed in the stock exchange's publication after the close of Saturday's market, and prices of industrial leaders sagged in the early trading. But losses were mostly fractional and there was sufficient buying demand for all stocks offered to turn the tide of prices promptly, and with few exceptions prices were again headed upward before the end of the first half hour.

On the eve of important developments involving their possible merger, California Packing and Postum Cereal sold in large volume at declines of 3 to 11 points from Saturday's close. It was reported that directors of California packing company would consider officially today an offer of $135 a share for sufficient stock to carry control, but meanwhile heavy trading took place on the stock exchange at from 170 to 164. A loss of 15 points from last week's high, Postum Cereal at 116 showed a shrinkage of about 9 points from its recent high. Suggesting a possible "hitch" in the contemplated plan.

Judge J. C. Hanley Gives Judgment on Two Cognovit Notes

Two judgments on cognovit notes in favor of James S. Stevenson of Wellsville have been handed down by Municipal Judge Jesse C. Hanley. One of the judgments for $231.60 was against Joseph Hill of East Palestine. The other was against Frank B. Kays of Salineville for $56.40.

David Thompson, flint mill worker, was given a suspended 30 day jail sentence when he pleaded guilty to a charge of the non-support of his six-year-old son, after making arrangements to pay for the boy's support. He was arrested upon information of his former wife, Mrs. Geneva Covert.

Ten arrests were made by the police over the week-end. Five of the arrests were charged with intoxication, three with disorderly conduct, while two were traffic violations.

Horace Hawkwood, telephone company employee, was fined $1 and costs for fast and reckless driving. He was arrested on Second street by Captain Conley, Saturday afternoon.

In particular to Wilson F. Smith for the courtesies, extended to us while we were conducting the tree survey in your city. To these gentlemen and others who kindly assisted us are due our thanks.

"We wish to add also that the services of any of the scientific departments of the experiment station are at the disposal of the city of East Liverpool for any further counsel, conference or suggestions. We shall be glad to enter into co-operation in carrying forward the city forestry work. Our best wishes are with you in an effort to make better, bigger and a more beautiful East Liverpool."

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Delphia Murray.
Mrs. Delphia Marie Andrus Murray, 23 years old, died Saturday morning at 4:45 o'clock at Youngstown following a brief illness of complications.

She was the daughter of R. W. and Elizabeth Andrus. She was married to H. L. Murray on April 12, 1922. In addition to her husband she is survived by one daughter, Doris May, 3 years old; two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Wetzel, Follansbee, W. Va.; Mrs. J. M. Dalrymple, Sistersville, W. Va.; two brothers, L. E. Andrus, Harlem Springs, and C. A. Andrus, Follansbee, W. Va.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the home of F. H. Murray, Fifth street, Newell, in charge of Rev. W. D. Brock, pastor of the Christian church. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery.

Jacob Landfried.
Jacob Landfried 71 years old, died yesterday in his home, Erie street, East End.

He is survived by his widow, Louisa Landfried; five sons, Harry, Edward, Fred, Walter, Clyde; three daughters, Mrs. Charles Woods, Freda, all of this city; Mrs. William Reight, Wellsville, and one brother, Henry Junior Landfried, Frizna, Cal.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home, in charge of Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ. Burial will be made in Spring Grove cemetery.

Thomas Collins.
Mrs. Martha Newland was advised yesterday of the death of her nephew, Thomas Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Collins, former residents of East Liverpool, which occurred in Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. Newland, Ann Quinn and Richard Newland, this city, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Fitzgerald and daughter of Wellsville, left today to attend the funeral.

Record Attendance At Revival Service In Baptist Church

One of the largest crowds which ever gathered within the First Baptist church crowded the edifice at the revival services last evening when Rev. Mel Morris, Maryland evangelist, spoke on the subject, "The Feast of Belshazzar."

The Sunday school room, aisles, corridors and every available foot of space was crowded and many persons are said to have been turned away. Thirty-five persons shook the hand of the evangelist at the close of the service as a testimony of their conversion.

The meetings will close Wednesday evening. The evangelist plans to return to his home at Greensboro, Md., on Thursday. His sermon subject for tonight's service will be "The Rich Fool."

several months of investigation by the department of justice.

"These investigations developed facts which in the opinion of the department, evidence a clear intention on the part of those responsible for the mergers eventually to bring together the several merged companies under control of one gigantic corporation."

Attorney General Sargent said: "The formation of the Ward Food Products corporation for the evident purpose of consummating that plan was the immediate cause of filing the suit."

Government's Demands.

The government's petition makes the following salient demands:

1. That the ward interest be adjudged to have violated the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton act.

2. That defendants be enjoined from doing any act in furtherance of alleged conspiracy, combination and attempt to monopolize food products.

3. That the Ward Baking, Continental Baking, General Baking and Ward Food Products corporations be enjoined from acquiring the whole or part of the stock or physical assets of the others.

4. That these defendants be enjoined perpetually having any directors, officer, agent or employee in common with each other.

5. That they be enjoined from entering any contracts, agreements or understandings with one another for joint purchases of materials, supplies and equipment or for a common policy in sale of their output.

Charges Against Ward.

Under the Clayton act the government seeks to force the "defendants" to dispossess themselves of stocks, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any competing company heretofore acquired by them to the end that competition may be fully restored in the baking industry."

William B. Ward and associates were charged by the government with planning since 1921 "to bring all or substantially all of the wholesale bakeries in the United States under the control of a single gigantic corporation and thereby to eliminate all competition between the baking companies, both locally and in interstate commerce."

The Ward interests have sought to eliminate competition in the purchase of ingredients and equipment and eventually to acquire milling companies, yeast companies and other producers of necessary ingredients and equipment, it may set forth.

WARNING AGAINST DUMPING ASHES

Property owners and all citizens will take notice that depositing ashes and other rubbish on the streets and alleys is forbidden by city ordinance and offenders will be promptly prosecuted.

SCOUTS READY FOR JAMBOREE

Seven Troops are Entered in Frolic at Y. M. C. A.

Seven Boy Scout troops of the East Liverpool-Wellsville-Chester-Wellsville districts have been entered in the jamboree, which will be held in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight in connection with the 16th anniversary of the movement which is being celebrated this week.

Four of the entries which had been filed at Boy Scout headquarters here up to noon today are from East Liverpool, two from Wellsville and one from Chester. Those from this city are: Troop 1 of the Pennsylvania Avenue M. E. church; Troop 5 of the First Presbyterian church; Troop 6 of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Troop 7 of St. Aloysius Catholic church.

Wellsville troops entered in the contest are: Troop No. 1, sponsored by the Wellsville Kiwanis club, and Troop 3 of the Immaculate Conception church. The other entry is Troop No. 1 of Chester.

The jamboree will consist of various sports and will be in charge of Harry Wilson, county Scout executive. The public is invited.

Members of Troop No. 7 attended Mass in the St. Aloysius church at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Other troops plan to attend divine services next Sunday.

U.S. Now Uses Three Times As Many Autos As Rest of World

Almost Twenty Million Motor Cars Registered on January 1, According to Department of Commerce.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The American people are now using three times as many automobiles as all the rest of the world combined, the department of commerce announced today.

Almost every American home has its car.

There were 10,999,436 automobiles registered throughout the United States on January 1, last, the department's census showed—or approximately one motor vehicle for every five men, women and children in the country. The census takers estimate there are 25,000,000 homes in the country. Evenly distributed, this would amount to an automobile in four of every five homes.

Unofficial estimates placed the value of the country's motor transport at more than $11,000,000,000 and the annual operating cost runs into billions and staggers the imagination.

Cost 20,000 Lives in 1925.

Rapid motor transportation cost the country an additional billion or two in property damage, as the result of traffic accidents, to say nothing of about 20,000 in lives during 1925.

Department figures showed 25,973, 923 automobiles in operation in the world January 1, compared with 22, 700,344 a year before. Of the world's motor vehicles 20,799,151 were passenger cars, 181,573 busses, 3,454,939 trucks and 1,519,705 motorcycles.

In the United States the passenger machines numbered 17,317,357, busses, 80,900; trucks, 244,579, and motorcycles, 155,500.

The United Kingdom with 660,734 passenger cars, 19,000 busses, 224,287 trucks and 671,522 motors, was the nearest automotive rival of the United States.

The census showed 855,000 motor vehicles in France, 727,594 in Canada, 539,830 in Germany, 368,293 in Austria and 184,700 in Italy.

Motorcycle in Tibet.

According to the survey there was one lone motor vehicle, a motorcycle, in Tibet, and two each in the Solomon and Ellice Islands. The Fiji Islands of the South Seas operated 474 machines while 25 puffed about in the mountains of Abyssinia.

Officials said that in addition to owning most of the world's automobiles, the United States produced even a greater percentage of the total.

American automobile markets continued to expand rapidly abroad last year, in spite of the efforts of foreign governments to turn purchases to domestic producers.

While in Europe extremely stiff competition exists, cars from the United States were sent to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South America in greater numbers. In Argentina a big percent of the 181,250 machines came from this country.

Triumvirate Charged.

The government outlined successive steps in the alleged conspiracy from the formation of the United Baking Corporation in 1921 to the announcement of the Ward Food Products corporation January 30, 1926.

Although it was declared that the cost of production of bread has been reduced in the last 25 years, the government charges that "such economies have not benefited the consumer by lowering the price of bread, but have been absorbed by the great baking companies."

The General Ward and Continental Baking corporations have an annual output of about $1,200,000,000, according to the petition.

"The proceeding is unique in that it has for its main object the prevention of the formation of a combination in restraint of trade, instead of the dissolution of a combination already in existence," Sargent declared.

William B. Ward was named as the "most powerful single personage connected with the baking industry," Ward, Helms and Barber constitute a "triumvirate controlling the fortunes of the baking industry," the petition said.

CROWD ATTENDS M. E. SERVICES

"Church Night" Will be Observed on Tuesday.

First week of the mid-winter evangelistic campaign at the First Methodist Episcopal church closed yesterday with large crowds at both the morning and evening services. Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the church, occupied the pulpit at both services, while the music was in charge of Prof. Charles Weiland, of Aurora, Ill.

There will be no service tonight, Monday being "rest day." "Church Night" will be observed Tuesday evening when an effort will be made to have every member of the church in attendance. The sermon subject will be "He Knocketh for Admittance." Group picture of the choir and church officials will be taken at the close of the services.

"Family Night" will be observed Wednesday evening, when families are asked to attend in a body. Prof. Weiland will give a prize to the largest family in attendance. His subject will be "Two Ways."

Women organizations of the church will attend Thursday night's service. Dr. Fowler's sermon for this service will be "The Gospel's Power."

Members of the Sunday school will attend the Friday night service, which will be known as "Young People's Night." The sermon will be on the subject, "The Open Door."

"Weiland Night," in honor of the song leader, will be observed on Saturday night. Special children's services will be conducted by Prof. Weiland at 4 o'clock on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Rev. A. J. Travis Urges Co-operation In Law Enforcement

Co-operation with authorities entrusted with the enforcement of laws, was urged by Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ in his sermon on "The Ideal City," delivered at the Sunday evening service.

He condemned jay walking, especially in the business district, and also the fast and reckless auto driver and joy rider.

Lad Confesses Murders

Hoffman was taken to a Fremont hospital, where an operation failed to save his life.

An airdate watchdog, who resisted Clark's efforts to break into the house may be used as an important witness in the trial, Sheffler said. The dog was beaten into insensibility and carried to the barn before the Hoffmans returned home. Sheffler believes that the dog will remember the man who beat him so cruelly and will thus strengthen the chain of evidence.

Clark, in making his confession, said he had not expected to stop at his sister's home, but ran out of gasoline and so decided to remain over night. He was enjoying a late and hearty breakfast when Sheriff William A. Wrot and Cleveland police entered and surrounded the home.

Tears Up $2,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—John J. Juka, 38, stood in Battery park laughing cheerfully as he tore $2,000 in the form of ten and twenty yellowbacks into small fragments. The police took him to the observation ward at Bellevue hospital.

OPPOSE STREET ASSESSMENTS

Lisbon Council Hears Protests—Reduction Asked.

Several owners of property fronting on Jerome street, Lisbon, have appealed to the village council of Lisbon for a reduction in special street assessments, but it is improbable the request will be granted, it was said today.

When the matter was brought to the attention of the solons, action was deferred.

This street, which extends east from North Market street and passes the fair grounds, was paved with part county aid. Some property owners contend that the county should have put more money into the project on account of the street being a part of an inter-county highway.

Property owners also claim that curbing is lacking at the east end of the street. It is also charged that the street was not finished according to contract.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the work that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headache, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Normal Bowel Movements Come In Ten Days

Regular And Natural And No Artificial Aid Required for a Long Time To Come.

Millions of men and women who have habitual constipation will hail this news with delight.

Take one bottle of McCoy's Rinolin according to directions and if it does not help you to entirely rid yourself of chronic constipation or any functional bowel disorder, any druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

Thousands of people, most of them victims of harsh and harmful cathartics and purgatives, salts and calomel, have already taken McCoy's Rinolin with the same gratifying result—habitual constipation with them is "thing of the past" and bowel movements are natural and regular.

Like McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, this efficient preparation is thoroughly reliable and a pleasant, wholesome emulsion that has won the approval of many physicians.

Sensible people will take McCoy's Rinolin to establish normal peristaltic action and keep the bowels free from poisonous waste and the blood free from toxins.

Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

He was wasting away—from an overworked stomach. Stuart's set him to rights! Use these pleasant little tablets, and eat your fill!

It's acid condition that causes stomach pains, gas, sourness, and distress of indigestion. And Stuart's tablets guard your stomach as well. Chewing one or two gives your stomach alkaline—and relief is instantaneous. Heartily eat—hard smokers—high livers—find Stuart's a boon and blessing!

Full Box FREE!

Very druggist has Stuart's tablets, 25c and 50c. Or a full box free if you write the P. A. Stuart Company, Dept. C, Marshall, Mich. Get a metal box of Stuart's for the pocket—and keep it filled! A new stomach for twenty-five cents.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Safe for filmy silks; safe for delicate colors; safe for tender hands.

Women's Feet Are Good As Ever Though Many Are Flat Footed

Denver Orthopedists are About Evenly Divided on Question of Pedal Deformity.

DENVER.—Denver orthopedists are about evenly divided on the moot question, "Are American Women Flat-footed?"

The charge of pedal deformity was hurled at American women by the leader of a woman's hockey team from Europe, which recently staged a successful American tour. She said the American girls couldn't use their toes in running on their skates and thus suffered defeat.

Denver men who make women's feet their business are not so sure that "our" girls are generally afflicted with flat, twisted, distorted, deformed extremities.

"Not more than 10 per cent of the women who came into our shoe department are afflicted with serious foot ailments," declared H. B. Teets, superintendent of one large shoe store.

"As in almost everything else that pertains to health," he continued, "people are just beginning to learn anatomy and to understand what the causes of a great many ailments are.

TROUBLED FOR YEARS WITH INDIGESTION

Mr. Allan Small, of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I have always lived in fear of heart trouble—my father, as well as my mother's sister, died from this dreaded affliction when I was a child. As it was on both sides of my family and I had often heard it was hereditary, I lived in dread and fear.

"As I have had at intervals severe abdominal pains, heart-burn and pressure on the heart, I felt there was no relief so I became reconciled to the horrible truth I was doomed, nothing could be done and must await my time to go as my father and mother's sister. I never dreamed I might only have intestinal indigestion, and my trouble was soon and acid stomach, causing gas pressure on the heart. Thanks to a friend who suggested Carter's Little Liver Pills as a remedy for faulty intestinal elimination, I am now free from the dreaded fear and enjoy all around good health. Small pills, easy to take and relieve the bowels in a rational way, with pleasant after-effects." For sale at all druggists.

In my opinion women have just as good feet now as they ever have had since the general use of shoes began."

L. H. Gilmore, foot specialist in a local department store, is not so optimistic, however. He thinks a normal foot is "rare," and that women's feet are flat and distorted in many ways.

"Going from extremely high heels to low ones is the reason," he declares. Gilmore also says that women nowadays are wearing bigger shoes, and that this is partly because of flat feet.

Other foot specialists, interviewed, expressed differing opinions, some declaring that there is "flat footed ness," while others believed the majority of women were victims of crippled feet.

'SATISFIED CUSTOMER BEST ADVERTISER,' O. K. SHOE REPAIR SLOGAN

Tom Gust, Formerly of Chester, Operating Electrically Equipped Shop at 214 East Fifth Street, Practices Word "Service" in His Business — "Has Them Ready When Promised."

"A satisfied customer is the best advertiser."

This is the slogan of Tom Gust, formerly of Chester, who recently purchased the O. K. Electric Shoe Repair establishment, 214 East Fifth street, this city. This shop was established three years ago.

In his business, Mr. Gust uses the best of materials, being a firm believer in quality as well as expert workmanship. A-1 white oak leather, the widely known Goodyear Wingfoot and the famous United States Springfoot heels are used exclusively at the O. K. establishment.

The shop is equipped with the latest type shoe repairing machinery, which includes an electric stitching machine, finisher and polisher. Only the best of work is turned out by Mr. Gust, who gives every pair of shoes brought into his shop personal attention.

The proprietor knows the real meaning of the word "service" practices it in his business. "I never make a promise for delivery which I feel that I cannot fulfill," he says. "In fact, I would rather have a customer take his work to some other establishment than disappoint him. Have them ready when promised is my slogan and my many customers have learned to appreciate my promptness."

Mr. Gust says that thousands of dollars is wasted in East Liverpool and vicinity every year because people neglect to take the proper care of their footwear.

"For instance," he declares, "a slightly run-down heel may not discommodate the wearer as much as it does the person who wears a great deal in walking but the injurious effect that it has on the balance of the shoe is surprising. Soon the counter gives one way or the other, the arch begins to sag, the sole begins to wear on one side and it is not long before the entire shoe is out of shape, making it almost impossible to bring it back to its former appearance. Whereas, if new heels had been applied from the start, the shoe no doubt would have given weeks and possibly months of comfortable and satisfactory wear."

Watch your shoes carefully, especially the heels and you will be surprised at the additional service you can get out of your footwear. The O. K. Electric Shoe Repair Shop is one of the few establishments of its kind in eastern Ohio that re-soles and re-heels galoshes. "Why spend from $4 to $6 for a new pair of galoshes when they can be repaired and placed in first-class condition for a dollar?" Mr. Gust asks. He thoroughly understands this line of work and guarantees first-class workmanship and material in the repair of galoshes.

Ruppert Hits National League Action On Landis Contract

Decision to Extend Contract Premature Asserts Yankee Boss

Although Professing Friendship for Baseball Ruler and Approval of His Reign, New York Magnate Avers Inter-league Discussion Was in Order First.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—There will be absolutely no loss of life in Washington tomorrow through a stampede of American leaguers to climb aboard the band wagon and join the National league's movement for a bigger and better regime for Judge Landis, according to Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Yankee president. The colonel has nothing against Landis, either as a commissioner or as a man, neither, he believes, has the American league in general.

He merely thinks that some one has rushed in where angels fear a stubbed toe and, in consequence, there has been no chance for concerted action, particularly on the terms of the new contract that might be extended to the judge. It might be necessary to make a few changes in the document, he intimated, since the old one was largely experimental.

At the same time, he admitted that the National league action meant that American leaguers ultimately would be forced to follow suit or be branded "as disloyal to Landis."

The colonel has no wish to be identified in this way. He really is a pro-Landis man but thinks he is entitled to resent what he feels to be a bit of "popping off" out of turn by the National league. He thinks the boys should have gotten together in the back room somewhere and talked things over.

Advices dignified silence. In brief, everything is Jake, except with Ruppert. If he has anything to say at the schedule meeting tomorrow, he will counsel that the American league club owners preserve an aloof and dignified silence, which may come under the head of refined crudity to some of them.

"As everyone knows, I admire Judge Landis personally and am a strong supporter of his regime," Ruppert declared. "But that doesn't blind me to the fact that the National league was unnecessarily premature in its resolution to extend his term ten years. What was the big rush? The judge's contract has two years to run and both leagues could have gotten together on an extension in due course."

"Now, however, we will have to play ball on that resolution or be called disloyal to Landis. I think the National league went out of its way to place us in an embarrassing position. If it wanted baseball to go on record in favor of Landis, I think it would have been more politic for the

Warren Outscores High In Fast Tilt

Weight, agility, five pairs of fleet feet, lightning fast passes and a flock of shots combined to give Warren high school passers a decisive 40 to 26 conquest over the Blue and White here Saturday night and the victory gave the Mahoning valley an even break with the Ohio river last in weekend contests. Girard having taken the count on the night before.

Every point registered by the visitors with the exception of two in the final was earned from scrimmage. The greater heft of the Warren passers, combined with their speed, enabled them to outlast the locals, the results being plainly evident in the third and fourth periods, when the Blue and White offensive suffered an acute attack of anemia.

Fresh at the outset of the engagement, Lora's lightweight lads kept the visitors at their heels throughout the initial period save for one or two exceptions when the count was knotted. The Potters dropped back in the second to give the Warren five an 18-16 advantage at the half-way mark.

The visitors improved, if anything, during the 10-minute intermission and they banged the leather at the hoop for 13 points in this one quarter, the period winding up with the score 21-22. And the Potters' efforts in the final stanza were insufficient to bring them out of the rut.

Forward Horner and Center Kempke nailed the basket for seven field goals apiece, the majority of which came in the second half. Horner was a veritable flash and he worked harder for the points he made than any two other Warrenites on the court. He operated chiefly around the foul line on his scoring attempts although he was not averse to trying his luck from the corners occasionally.

Jim Hamilton got around the big fellows for five field goals while English collected a trio of two pointers, Dedrick two and Pussey one.

The Warren defense was on a par with the Potters' throughout the clash, but they copped off the laurels, if any, when they began to fling the spheres around the court. When the ball left their hands it almost sizzled until it was clamped by the hands of a receiver. Their heaves were in marked contrast to the Potters' who's overhead lobbs at crucial moments were captured by enemy performers.

"Cap" Pussey and his squad went down but they perished fighting gamely. Carl Wilson, injured at Columbiana, got into the scrap at junctures, relieving Dedrick, the latter, however, finished the game.

Warren girls outscored the local lassies in the preliminary, winning by a score of 56 to 10. Miss McCormick forward, alone accounted for 25 points with 11 field goals and three fouls.

PLAYS TENNIS JUST FOR FUN

Miss Wills Not Bothered By Defeat in Doubles.

By Frederick K. Abbott.

CANNES, Feb. 8.—Helen Wills is not in the least perturbed over the fact that she met defeat yesterday in the mixed doubles, when pitted against Suzanne Lenglen.

The California girl looks forward to the possibility of meeting Suzanne in the singles of the Carlton club tournament this week as "a lot of fun."

"My, what a fuss every one is making about two girls who want to play a game of tennis," said Miss Wills to the international News Service today, when asked about the projected match with Suzanne this week. "Really, nobody ever thinks about the fun I get out of tennis. In the first place I came to France to study. That's work. When I play tennis that's play and fun."

"Suzanne is a wonderful player and though I have heaps of confidence in myself, I wouldn't for the world attempt to predict the result. Regardless of the result, think what fun I will have."

Miss Wills took her defeat of yesterday philosophically. "My losing wasn't so good," she said. "I couldn't keep them in the back-court. Naturally, Suzanne killed them off the net."

Both Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen drew byes in today's play. Miss Wills is paired with Mlle. Contoslavos in the doubles and is not entered in the mixed doubles.

Suzanne is expected to withdraw from the doubles in order to save her strength for the singles. After yesterday's game there is no doubt but what Suzanne is the best bet in the match against Miss Wills. Her play yesterday showed her to be a more brilliant player, even though she did lack the stamina of the American girl.

While Mlle. Lenglen was all over the court and with hardly any apparent motion, Miss Wills seemed rather cumbersome in her movements by comparison.

Miss Wills learned much in yesterday's match, though, one thing being that she cannot lob them to Suzanne. The crowds were with the American girl and they will be with her this week. She showed herself a fighter and this very ability to fight against heavy odds may stand her in good stead. A few of the venture-some are backing her as a long shot against Suzanne.

Miss Wills attracted almost as much attention off the courts as she did on them, when she appeared in a new model suit of gray with red fox trimming. She gave her impetus to the reported dying cloche hat mode, for she wore a cloche hat made of the same material as her chic suit.

Buckeyes Still In Big Ten Race

Two Separate Fights on Among Teams.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The western conference basketball campaign has revolved itself into two scrambles—in the second division and among the leading fives.

Indiana and Ohio State, the only first division teams to play during the week, kept themselves in the race by winning, respectively over Iowa and Chicago. Return of Wisconsin, Michigan and Purdue to the fray this week, after a lapse of a fortnight, is expected to bring some major changes in the conference standing, now nearly the same for a month.

Iowa's defeat of Minnesota, 21 to 14, yesterday, put the Hawkeyes in seventh place, behind the dormant Illinois, and relegated the Gophers to the cellar. Chicago's 14 to 18 loss to the Buckeyes gave it a toboggan push into eighth position. The standing:

BALKANS UNDER BANDIT SPELL

Daring of These Outlaws Is Celebrated in Song and Story.

Vienna—Vienna was still thrilled by the spectacular trial of Menda Caracul, a young Macedonian girl, who, at the opera last May, killed Todor Penzila, a notorious Balkan bandit chief, when news issued from Greece that the Brabantis and Yagoulls, brigand bands that for years terrorized the inhabitants of Mount Olympus, had been wiped out. The heads of the leaders, on which a total of 10,000,000 drachmas had been set, were taken to Katerini, a provincial capital, and exhibited to the public.

Reports of Balkan outlawry appear so frequently in the newspapers that a casual reader might conclude that southeastern Europe was largely populated by brigands. He would not be far wrong, for in that part of the world banditry is an ancient institution with firm roots in the customs of the people, and if every one is not a bandit, all are at least potential bandits.

"Once upon a time there was a bandit." It is with this phrase that most of the bedtime stories in the Balkans begins. The bandit is also the hero of innumerable folk-songs. At the village feasts, when the wine starts flowing, tales of his strength and bravery are chanted to the monotonous tones of reed pipe and drum.

The boys of Sofia, Monastir, Saloniki and Athens do not enviously read of superlatives like Nick Carter or superlatives like Dick Merriwell. The thin, paper-backed volumes which they cleverly hide in their geographies and readers and ravenously devour while an unsuspecting teacher thinks they are following the lesson contain stories of superbandits. Athletes like Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Jack Dempsey and Passy Nurnal would mean nothing to the Balkan youth who dreams of emulating the exploits of Condylis or Todor Alexandroff. Condylis rose from a comitadj chief, fighting the Turks and Bulgars in Macedonia to minister of war in Greece, and Todor Alexandroff, although only a bandit leader, made and unmade prime ministers in Bulgaria.

Some Are Political Healers. In truth, bandit ranks high as a profession in the Balkans. Its practitioners win power, wealth, fame and sometimes death. They are ubiquitous and of two distinct types—political and nonpolitical. The former are usually members of revolutionary committees and are called comitadjis, which means committeemen. They are especially active in border provinces and usually receive secret support from the various Balkan governments. There are different groups with different political ends, but all plunder unmercifully the native peasants, shepherds and merchants.

In many parts of Macedonia they carry on an underground government, levying taxes, dispensing justice and conscripting recruits. Those who refuse to submit to their dictates are punished by instant death. Therefore they inspire fear in the hearts of the populace. An experience I had on my way across the Balkans to Turkey vividly demonstrates this fact.

At Trieste in the spring of 1920 I boarded the Orient Express for Constantinople. The country we rode through still bore the signs of war. The bridges were blown up and temporary structures of wood had been built to take the place of the old steel or stone. Passengers were ordered to get out and walk across these, as there was doubt that the trembles would bear up the loaded train.

On the second day out of Trieste, when we had left Nish behind and were passing through the heart of Macedonia, the passengers were just rising from their berths when the train suddenly stopped. My companion, an Armenian merchant of Saloniki, looked out the window and gazed down along the track ahead. He immediately drew in his head, and, greatly excited, shouted, "Comitadjis!"

Hurriedly he took a wallet from his coat pocket and hid it under the mattress of his berth, and opening a suitcase he removed a packet of papers which he threw into the wastepaper of the wash basin.

A Knock on the Door.

Wondering what had so terrified my fellow-traveler, I looked out myself and saw massed before the locomotive a group of men in ragged uniforms and armed with rifles—unharmful and fierce looking fellows. I recalled reading only a few weeks before that the Orient Express had been held up in Macedonia by a band of Bulgarian comitadjis, the passengers robbed and a number of Serbs taken off and held for ransom; and I was silently thankful that, except for a few French francs to pay for meals in the dining car, all my funds were in a letter of credit negotiable only by myself; that my watch was of the dollar sort, and that I was not a promising candidate for ransom.

The train began to move, the comitadjis scrambled aboard. Train-robbing tactics in Macedonia, I decided, differ from those in vogue in America. Dim memories of Jesse James and the more recent impression of the movies told me that the standard American method was to line up the passengers along the track and go through their pockets. Also a special detachment of bandits, I recalled, usually went aboard the halted train and rifled the baggage.

The train rapidly gained full speed, and my companion and I sat down on the lower bunk of the compartment and waited for the comitadjis to come and search us. In a hoarse whisper he said: "They are terrible men! They may kill us!" There came a knock on the door. The merchant was speechless with fright. "Yes! What is it?" "Petit déjeuner servi," came back the reply. The dining car porter was announcing breakfast.

Smoke-Room Gossip Not Fanciful. Out in the corridor was a dapper Serbian lieutenant with monocle and riding stock. He greeted me with a pleasant "Bon jour," and said he was commanding the detachment of Serbian soldiers which had just boarded the train and would accompany it to the Bulgarian frontier. The government at Belgrade had taken this precaution against comitadj attacks ever since the express had been held up two weeks before.

On hearing this the Armenian merchant, smiling sheepishly, took his wallet from under the mattress and put it back in his pocket, and removed the packet of papers, slightly damp but otherwise unharmed, from the waste pan. His mistake was natural, as the roles of comitadj and soldier in this corner of Europe are often interchangeable.

During the remainder of the journey to Constantinople the passengers talked of nothing but bandits; bandits who had become generals, provincial governors, and even prime ministers, and a Serb boasted that his king was the descendant of a famous brigand of the early Nineteenth century whose name was Kara (Black) George, from whom the ruling family of Yugoslavia takes its name of Karageorgievich. Kara George fought the Turks with much the same tactics as the Bulgarian comitadjis use against the Serbs in Macedonia today. Every passenger seemed to have had at least one experience with bandits.

All had been shot at, some had been wounded, abducted, ransomed. Not to be outdone, I told them of the exploits of the gunmen of my native New York and let them believe that I was personally acquainted with the most notorious. All this talk, instead of making the bandits seem more real, made me feel as if they were of the same nature as ghosts. On arriving at Istanbul, however, news that two Near East relief workers whom I was to visit in Cilicia had been murdered a few days before by Turkish chetahs (brigands in peace and irregulars in war) made the bandits again realistic.

Kingdoms for Strong Arms.

It is only a few months ago that the Greek island of Samos, off the west coast of Asia Minor, fell into the hands of two notorious brigands, the Gagas brothers, and their followers. This exploit brought to mind the days when any daring adventurer could have had a kingdom in the Aegean for the courage and skill to seize it.

In the Fifteenth century, before the Turks won control of the whole eastern Mediterranean, all the islands in this corner of the world, as well as the greater part of what is now Greece, were ruled by so-called barons, counts, dukes and princes, who usually were nothing but glorified brigands, often fugitives from justice in their native lands in western Europe.

Still earlier many a farm lad who had come to the Levant as a Crusader remained to rule over an opal isle or a rocky peninsula. And even under the Turk a few intrepid souls succeeded in maintaining their supremacy in remote places where the sultan ruled nominally, but where his officials never penetrated to return alive. This tradition of banditry, built up through centuries, still lives in the Aegean, although the modern bandit is seldom able to carry out an exploit in the grand manner. The Gagas brothers succeeded in holding Samos for only a few days. Two Greek battleships were sent from Piraeus to oust them. Faced with ten-inch guns, the brigands were forced to take to the mountains with all the occupants of the local jail, whom they had liberated on their first day in power.—New York Times.

Charlestoneer Breaks Leg in Wedding Glide

Hammond, Ind.—Check one for the Charlestoner. As a Charleston performer, Robert Richardson was nix. He tried his best, 'tis true, and took a couple of lessons and all that. He got so he could kick and slip with fair success and Charlestoned whenever occasion demanded.

But when it came to instructing others, that's where he met his downfall. And it was plenty hard, let it be known. As a matter of fact, he fell so hard while trying to impress guests at Joe Kasper's wedding anniversary here recently that when he was raised from the floor it was found he had a compound fracture of one leg. He is in St. Margaret's hospital with his leg in a plaster cast. And the world goes Charlestoning on.

Princess Alexandra Only Shingled Royalty

London.—Princess Alexandra, wife of Prince Arthur of Connaught, has gained distinction as the only shingled member of the British royal family. It is noteworthy, however, that when she appears at formal dinners at Buckingham palace the princess has always worn her "evening locks" as wigs for the bobbed or shingled are called in society circles.

The queen of Spain and Queen Maud of Norway, both recent visitors to London, still wear their hair long, as do Queen Marie of Rumania, the troubled mother of the romantic Prince Carol, and the queen of the Belgians, who recently was incorrectly reported to have been shingled. Some of the younger members of the royal houses have had their hair cut, but Princess Alexandra of Connaught is the only member of the British royal family who thus far has adopted the fashion.

Q. How does a cat manage always to land on its feet? M. W.

A. The method whereby a cat invariably lands on its feet even when dropped from a comparatively small height has been demonstrated by the use of the slow-motion picture camera. The motion picture revealed that at first the cat simultaneously extends the hindlegs and tail perpendicular to the axis of its body, and draws the forelegs close in. A twisting strain is then applied through the body and results in the closely held forequarters rotating nearly ninety degrees in advance of the hindquarters. Then, by drawing in the hindlegs and tail, extending the forelegs and exerting another torsional stress in a direction opposite to the previous one, the hindquarters are brought around and the cat is ready to land on its feet.

Q. When was the Mohammedan religion introduced into the Philippines? M. P.

A. Mohammedanism was brought into the Philippines in the 14th century by Malays from Borneo.

Q. What are the absolute monarchies of the world and who rules them? C. E.

A. The absolute monarchies of the world are—Abyssinia—Emperor Waldeu Zauditu; Afghanistan—Amanullah Khan; Morocco—Sultan Moulay Yusef; Siam—King Rama VI.

Q. How does a cat look? J. W. C.

A. Part varies in consistency from a turf to a slime. As it decomposes its color deepens, old peat being dark brown or black, and keeping little of the plant texture. According to its formation, it is known as bog peat (mosses), heath peat, meadow peat (grasses and sedges), forest peat or wood peat (trees), and sea peat (seaweeds). For use as a fuel, peat is dried, and often compressed. It is "widely found and increasingly important, but, owing to its bulk and its large content of water and ash, does not compete favorably with coal."

Q. Was there a theory as early as the 13th century that the earth was round? A. S.

A. A volume unearthed from a library in Oxford university entitled "The Metrical Lives of the Saints" written by a monk at the end of the

Is your appetite gone?

REMEMBER, how it used to be when you could hardly wait for mealtime? And then, sit down and eat several helpings of everything—enjoy every morsel and get up from the table feeling satisfied with the World, happy with everybody and ready for anything?

But what a difference in living when even the sight and smell of food sickens you! Never hungry—no matter how tempting the food is—nothing tasting right. And then, after nibbling at a few bites, feeling worse than ever.

Oh, life is hardly worth living this way. And yet, all in the World the matter with you is that you are starving for rich, red blood. And it is acknowledged everywhere that S. S. S. helps Nature build these healthy red-blood-cells by the millions!

All you need to do to get back that wonderful appetite is to build rich, red-blood-cells with S. S. S. It's simple. Just try it, like thousands are doing every day. See for yourself what S. S. S. will do. S. S. S. means blood with a punch—briskful of new life and energy. Get your S. S. S. at any good druggist. The larger size is more economical.

Pure Gold Won't Do.
Alloy Needed in Teeth.
Must Stand Friction.
Men Are Like Metal.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.
That which is absolutely pure lacks strength. And that which is strong to resist friction lacks absolute purity. In dentistry this is made clear by experience and practice.

In history it is made clear too often by the flames that burned men.

A wise dentist and doctor were talking.

"Nature limits her gifts to matter as to men."

The best and most valuable of metals is gold. But we can use it pure only when surroundings protect it.

If a dentist builds a tooth, he cannot make it of pure gold. For pure gold will not stand the friction, the biting, the struggles that go on among teeth. A tooth all of pure gold, imbedded in an interesting tissue, but that previous to acid, always bright, would cannot be made.

Fortunately we can use pure gold in fillings. When enamel hard as tooth form a protecting coat, we can use the pure gold as a filler, and defy in that filling all of nature's action.

We can mix the gold with baser, inferior metal and build a tooth that will crack nuts and last a long time—but it will grow black and show the base mixture in it.

There ought to be a moral in this fact that life's friction is too much for the noblest and purest of metals.

There is an excellent lesson in this doctor's talk. For man, in contact with the world and its struggle, is exactly the gold that the dentists use in their work.

Many a good man has gone to the wall—because he was pure gold and could not stand the friction. He might have lasted and been admired—a very good gold tooth among men—had there been more alloy in his nature.

Here and there some man of pure gold is protected by conditions, and like the pure gold filling in the tooth, he lasts in spite of his good qualities.

But far too often the man of pure character, free from base alloy, capable of compromise with his conscience is destroyed—or cast aside at the very beginning, as unfit for hard work.

Of men we can truly say what the doctor says of gold. The man to last, in spite of friction, must have the alloy of moral hardness. Then he can stand the friction—but he turns black.

Warren Hastings, amazed at his own honesty, was a strong gold tooth with much base alloy. Of pure gold, he could never have done this work. The British owe modern India, Burke owes a fine speech to this human tooth of gold alloy.

If you examine closely the private life of a Washington or even a Lincoln, you find the alloy. Under the test of history's acid these great names turn black. But it was the alloy that enabled them to do the hard work in spite of friction and fighting.

Less wise and far seeing than the scientific dentist, civilization is forever putting human pure gold in

YOUNGSTOWN BOY COASTER KILLED

YOUNGSTOWN, Feb. 8.—One boy was killed and four children injured in coasting accidents here over the week-end. Soley Shurts, 11, was killed when pierced by a runner on his sled. He tried to walk home, but toppled over in the snow and died on the way to a hospital.

Managers of Two Places Notified Public Parties on Other Nights Must be Conducted in "Orderly Manner."

BOTTLE THROWN FROM ONE HALL ROBBED HOUSE

Police Charge Several Men Attending One Dance in Fifth Street Building Saturday Had Been Drinking.

Declaring that East Liverpool's eight-man police department is unable to cope with the situation, Mayor Ralph Benedum today placed a ban on all Saturday night dances within the city limits.

The managers of two dance halls were notified by Captain of Police Conley that no more Saturday night dances would be permitted. Public dances may be held on other week days, the mayor said, so long as they are conducted "in an orderly manner."

Loiterers in Hallways.
The decision of the mayor and his service-safety director, John W. Moore, was reached after Captain Conley made a visit to Danceland, Fifth and Market streets, conducted by William Curran.

Police charge that as Conley entered the door, some one threw a half pint bottle, containing liquor, from a Market street window. The bottle burst on the sidewalk, narrowly missing Patrolman Norman McFarland, who was passing along the street, police say.

Police also say that several men attending the dance were drinking. The hallways leading to the dance floor were crowded with loiterers, it is claimed.

The mayor's order was issued after a conference with Director Moore and Police Chief McDermott.

Police Chief's Statement
The order affects Curran, who has been conducting dances at Danceland, and William Powell, who has been in charge of the dances held by the Jolly Fellows' club in a Broadway lodge temple. The latter has not yet taken out his permit, costing $50, the mayor said, but his dances were being conducted with the understanding that the permit was to be taken out later.

The dance managers, police say, are supposed to provide police protection during the dances, but the specials have been unable to maintain order, it is claimed.

"We are underpoliced and it is only placing another hardship upon our force to have them look after the Saturday night crowds which swarm the public dance halls, Chief McDermott said.

"It is not our local people who are causing the trouble at these dances but it is the fellows who come in from nearby towns, bringing their liquor with them. With such a crowd to cope with it is next to an impossibility to maintain order."

Two Evangelistic Singers Open Meet In Church of Christ

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Kellems, Oregon evangelistic singers, personal workers and directors of young people's work, assisted in the opening services of an evangelistic campaign in the First Church of Christ yesterday.

Despite icy streets and adverse weather conditions, the attendance at the Bible school was 600. There were two additions, one at the morning service and the other at the evening service.

Rev. B. R. Johnson, pastor, will preach on "The Passion of Jesus" to-night. Services will be held every evening this week with the exception of Saturday.

All coopers of local No. 71 are requested to meet in the local hall at 7 o'clock tonight, to go to the home of the late Earl J. Bennett. BY ORDER OF PRESIDENT.

NOTICE JR. O. U. A. M.
All members are requested to meet at Reed Building in Diamond, at 7:00 o'clock p. m. Monday Feb. 8 to attend funeral services for our late Brother Levi J. Bennett. (Signed) EMORY SPENCE, Councillor.

CLEVELAND LAD CONFESSES HE MURDERED TWO TO GET MONEY

William Clark Admits he Killed Couple on Fremont Farm.

ROBBED HOUSE

Ralph Hoffman and Wife Victims of Double Slaying.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—"I needed money; I knew the Hoffmans would be away Saturday night. That's the whole story."

In these words, according to police, William Clark, youthful Cleveland, told police and Sandusky county authorities today the motive for the double murder of Ralph Hoffman and wife on their farm near Fremont Saturday night.

"I'm a restless sort," he added explanatorily.
Clark under the guard of Sheriff William Wort, of Sandusky county, was returning to Fremont today to face a charge of first degree murder. Although Sandusky county has never sent a man to his death for a crime committed there, Prosecutor George Steffler planned to ask for the death penalty in this case. A speedy trial was said to be assured.

Shot Former Employers.
Clark, 25, former farmhand, but more lately steamfitter and at times bootlegger, was arrested yesterday morning at the home of a sister here, and calmly admitted, police say, that he had shot his former employers down in cold blood.

The Hoffmans were shot as they returned late Saturday night from their weekly shopping trip to Gibsonburg. Clark, according to authorities, had entered the Hoffman home during their absence, ransacked it for valuables and then lay down to await the return of the couple.

When the car drove into the yard, he ordered, "Hands up."
"Don't shoot, Bill. You can have anything we've got," Hoffman is said to have replied.

Dog May Be Witness.

Alarmed by being recognized, Clark fired. The bullet lodged in Hoffman's abdomen. Hoffman died, and it was only as he heard another shot that he realized he was not being pursued.

The second shot had wounded Mrs. Hoffman. Hoffman crawled through the heavy snow to the home of a neighbor.
Returning they found Mrs. Hoffman shot through the forehead, her body wedged between a pump and a small tree. They carried her to the house where she died a few minutes later.

Funeral services for John F. Schleiter, 59, Second street furniture dealer, who died Saturday in the Battle Creek, Mich., sanitarium, will be held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the home, 745 Minerva street. Rev. J. P. Dimitt, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Spring Hill cemetery, Wellsville. Friends may view the body tomorrow evening.

Man Is Shot Through Neck; Joseph Chetala Is Arrested

Street Car Track Gang Employee Charged With Shooting Alphonso Rocco, Wellsville, With Intent to Kill.

Accused of shooting Alphonso Rocco, 1212 Commerce street, Wellsville, as the result of an argument last night at Rocco's home, during which he was ejected from the house, Joseph Chetala, of 222 West Ninth street, is a prisoner today in the Wellsville jail. He is charged with shooting with intent to kill.

Rocco, according to physicians and police authorities, will probably recover. The bullet from Chetala's gun pierced Rocco's neck and lodged in a door sill.

According to police, Chetala, who is employed as a member of a track gang working for the street car company, visited with Rocco last night. A neighbor increased the party to three.

There was music during the evening and in the course of the impromptu

Carl J. Cripps, 38, Former Resident in City, Dies in Texas

Carl J. Cripps, 38, Los Angeles newspaperman and former resident here, died suddenly at El Paso, Texas, Saturday.

He was born in East Liverpool, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Cripps. He attended the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia and also spent 18 months with the army during the World war.

Of recent years he has been residing in Los Angeles, Cal. He has been working for the Los Angeles Press for about four years. He was in El Paso on business when he dropped dead.

He is survived by his wife, his father, S. J. Cripps, of this city; one sister, Mrs. Olen H. Dawson, also of East Liverpool, and a twin brother, Earl A. Cripps of New York city. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The body, which will be brought to East Liverpool for burial, is expected to arrive here Thursday.

program, an argument developed between Chetala and Rocco, it is reported, over a technicality in a piece of music.

Acting as peacemaker Rocco's neighbor advised Chetala to go home and led him out of the house. Later the neighbor went home himself.

Fires On Erastville Host.
Shortly after midnight, Chetala, incensed apparently, because of his ejection and the argument with Rocco, went back to Rocco's house, police say, and fired on his erstwhile host.

Rocco lives alone. According to the story told police, he laid on the floor a short time and then arose and dropped onto a bed. Evidently feeling his strength waning as a result of loss of blood, he made his way to a neighbor's home. His friends summoned Dr. J. S. McCulloch and the man's wound was dressed.

Police were notified. Chief of Police John Fultz and Officers Hurd and Kinney came to East Liverpool this morning at 5:30 o'clock and found Chetala at home. They placed him under arrest and took him back to Wellsville.

Pending developments in Rocco's condition, Mayor W. L. Fogo, of Wellsville, has set no definite time for Chetala's hearing.

Six hundred and fifty new borrowers' cards were issued, bringing the total number of borrowers using the library up to 5,187. Seven hundred and twelve new books were added, making a total of 14,952 books since the institution opened.

Sixty-one periodicals were received during the year, of which 41 were subscribed for, while 20 others were donated. The total amount of money expended during the year was $7,313.16, a balance of only 26 cents being on hand at the beginning of 1925. Collections in fines paid by borrowers amounted to $484.23.

Wealthy Family Mourns as Nurse, Aged 116, Dies

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The family of a millionaire was in mourning today for a dead immigrant woman and their family lot was being prepared to receive her body.

The woman was Mrs. Pauline Fatzl, 116, who came to the United States from her native Italy in a sailing ship 99 years ago. The millionaire was Edward Hines, the lumber king—the "Eddie" at whose advent into the world she presided as nurse.

Mrs. Fatzl was conscious and bright of mind to the last and expressed wishes concerning her funeral which Hines has ordered carried out to the last detail.

Mrs. Hazel Hadley, Columbus, to Speak At Rotary Meeting

Mrs. Hazel Hadley, in charge of the crippled children's branch of the state department of public instruction, Columbus, will address members of the Rotary club at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow. She will discuss the crippled children's work in which the Rotary club is interested.

Superintendent of School C. S. McVay will preside. A saxophone solo will be rendered by 16-year-old Ted Tagenhorst, member of the fourth grade at the Third street school and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tagenhorst.

Rev. J. W. Springer Will Preach in First U. P. Church

Rev. J. W. Springer, pastor of the United Presbyterian church of Emsworth, Pa., will occupy the pulpit of the First United Presbyterian church, Sixth and Jefferson streets, tonight and every night this week. The revival campaign which started last Thursday will end next Sunday. He will speak on "The Place of Prayer" at tonight's service. There will be special music by the choir under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Ferguson. A vocal solo will be rendered by Miss Wilda Warner.

PRETTY GIRL AND ANOTHER WOMAN SLAIN BY "GAS HAWKS"

One New York Victim Shot Twice, Police Say.

SCREAMS HEARD

Pocketbook, Untouched, Picked up Near Second Body.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Bodies of two well-dressed women, found in snow banks in widely separated parts of the city, today furnished the police with two baffling mysteries.

One of the victims, young and pretty, had been shot twice.

The other, middle-aged, bore no marks of violence.

The police were investigating the possibility that both bodies were thrown from automobiles.

Attacked in Taxicab
The younger woman's body was found by Patrolman Frank Butler lying on a snow pile on the East Side.

She had been shot through the temple and in the left breast.

The condition of her clothing and the fact that her nose was broken led police to believe she was killed by a man who attempted to attack her in a taxicab.

Several witnesses said they heard a woman's screams and saw a speeding taxi shortly before the body was found.

An expensive jeweled pendant was found around her neck. This eliminated the robbery theory.

The girl was about 25, with bobbed auburn hair.

The second body found was that of a woman about 55 years old. It lay on a snow bank in Brooklyn. It was found by a taxi driver. The woman's pocketbook lay beside her, untouched. The police were trying to determine whether she had been thrown from an automobile or killed accidentally while crossing the street.

TWO ARE HURT ON ICY STREET

School Girl and Woman Sustain Fractures in Falls.

Ice-covered sidewalks were responsible for at least two accidents, in which broken bones resulted, in East Liverpool over the week-end.

Miss Margaret Curran, high school junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Curran, 419 John street, sustained a fractured collar bone when she fell while crossing the street in front of the high school building this morning. Miss Curran was assisting a crippled companion to school when she slipped, her shoulder striking the curb.

The girl was carried into the high school building and later removed to the office of Dr. W. N. Bailey in an automobile. She was afterwards taken to the city hospital where the fracture was reduced.

Mrs. Harry Mulligan, Dresden avenue, sustained a fracture of her right arm Saturday when she fell while walking along St. Clair avenue. She was assisted to the office of Dr. Clyde Larkins. An X-ray examination of the injury was made at the City hospital this morning.

Mrs. Paul Phillips Fractures Leg in Fall on Icy Walk

Mrs. Paul E. Phillips, 812 Morton street, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg this morning when she fell on the icy sidewalk near the McNeel pottery, East Sixth street. She was removed to the City hospital in an automobile. The fracture was reduced by Dr. M. D. McCutcheon.

NOTICE MODERN WOODMEN
All Modern Woodmen are requested to meet in their hall at 7:30 p. m. tonight to attend funeral services for neighbor L. J. Bennett. R. MITCHELL, Consul.

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL
By EDGAR DOE NORRIS
Who Married For Money

SIXTY-NINE.
Had not Noble Harwood's self-possession been severely shaken by the outbreak he was then attempting to smooth over, he probably would have been able to make less of a disaster of the scene Lorraine Holly thrust upon him. Coming as it did, her unexpected entrance upon the troubled stage wilted him.

"Why —" he began, attempting to pull out of the hold she had upon his neck. Laurel, Marion and Lillah looking on with stark astonishment. The attention of nearby guests was being captured.

Noble, in his excitement, committed a fatal error. Louis was nearby and Noble called upon him for aid. He simply wanted to be freed from her grasp; she thought that his call meant that she was going to be thrown out, for despite her befuddlement, she somehow realized that this was the eventuality that was threatened.

"Huh? Give me the skidoo?" she cried, in an alcoholic tone, and pushing away. "No, you don't." She seemed suddenly to have been sobered some, but this was not the case. In a moment she was shrieking.

By now the butler was ready to lay hands upon her. "She must be drunk," Noble said to him, attempting to be diplomatic and explanatory.

The woman had spoken no word to indicate that she meant anything to Noble Harwood, but his wife and daughters, as they stood there watching the scene, intuitively sensed that this was so. Marion and Mrs. Lyons flushed lividly; Laurel, feeling her legs suddenly grow weak, leaned on the former for support.

Noble had succeeded in freeing himself from Lorraine Holly's clutches, but to prevent any worse maudlin disturbance, was helping Louis lead her from the room.

The agonized trio, many pairs of eyes upon them, faltered, and could only walk weakly from the room, the glory the evening had brought to them crumbling in ruins at their feet. This double blow was too crushing to be "smoothed over."

Laurel Todd did not go upstairs. Instead, wrappings, and without realizing it, shivering in the nocturnal chill, she fled out the door and roused the chauffeur nodding at the wheel of Mrs. Daly's car.

"Take me to my mother's place—to Mrs. Wellington Todd's." He was new in Mrs. Daly's service, and he could not have been expected to be familiar with the location of the Todd residence any way, and Laurel had to give him minute instructions. The way in which she gasped them out surprised and disturbed the chauffeur so that in his nervousness he nearly struck another automobile when he turned from Harwood House into the street.

Mrs. Wellington Todd, having returned from the ball early, leaving Berenice to be brought home later by young Jimmy Archer, had been sleeping peacefully for at least two hours when the ringing of the door-bell took her out of bed.

Tense because of her fear that the ring might have come from some one of evil intent, Mother Todd called through the entrance portal, "Who is there?"

"Laurel."
As she unlocked the door, Mother Todd instinctively knew that Laurel was in flight. Perhaps she had been expecting this for a long time. Certainly the possibility had occurred to

Durkin May Have Master Lawyer

W. J. "Beat the Rope" McAleer, above, who, it is claimed, has beaten the death penalty in all of the countless murder trials in which he has participated in 35 years of practice, is considering a request from Martin J. McAleer, whose fees are said to be highest exacted by any criminal lawyer in country, lives in Hammond, Ind.

her. More than once her conscience had disturbed her.

"Oh, mother —" Laurel burst into sobs as her mother enveloped her in strong, sympathetic arms, at the same time pushing the door shut.

"I know, I know," said the elder woman. Laurel did not think the response strange then.

Slowly they made their way up the stairs and into Mrs. Todd's room. There, kneeling beside her mother, as if at a confessional, Laurel poured out her story. Wounds long since healed reopened and wrung new tears from her willing eyes.

The elder woman remained silent until her daughter gasped out, "Oh, the shame of it!" Then said, "Forget what people are going to say, and think of your happiness. . . . What are you going to do?"
Laurel had run to mother like a hurt child, without any other thought than that her mother would know best. Mrs. Todd's question fell upon her ears strangely. To her weary and aching brain it seemed as if her mother were saying, "You got yourself into this, now you must get yourself out." Laurel got up slowly. "I don't know—I suppose I ought to go away."

"You won't be any more miserable here than you will be away."
"Oh, I never want to see him again."

"Tut, tut: . . . But you need rest. Crawl in bed beside me. Wait. I'll get you a sleeping powder."

Laurel obeyed, but caught her mother's arm. "There's one other thing I want to tell you," she said, a sad reluctance in her eyes.

Mrs. Todd sat down on the edge of the bed. She was unprepared for what was to come.

"I think I am going to be a mother."
"Oh: . . . My poor baby."

G. O. P. TICKET IS NOMINATED

Mayor Frank Riley
Choice for Second Term.

Mayor Frank Riley, office worker of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, will seek a second term at election on Thursday, March 11, as a result of action taken at a mass meeting of Republican party workers in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' hall, First National bank building, Saturday evening.

A complete ticket, with the exception of candidates for Third ward council and school board member, was named. Theodore Wilson, mail carrier, who was nominated for council, declined because of his position. This place will be filled later.

The nominees, which will represent the G. O. P. on the ballot, are:
Clerk—Edward Garner, paymaster at the American Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Council—First ward, Dennis Linger, potter; Second ward, John Hobbs, butcher; Fourth ward, Charles H. Davis, mill worker; Fifth ward, John Swindell, packer.

I will pay $100.00 to any person who will secure evidence that will lead to the conviction of the person guilty of poisoning my dog.

CLARKSBURG MAN LANDS POSITION

Lloyd D. Griffin of Clarksburg has been appointed assistant banking commissioner and assumed his new duties it was announced today by State Banking Commissioner H. A. Abbott. At the end of January, Mr. Griffin had served his connection as head of an income tax division under Internal Revenue Collector Ed Brast.

The appointment of Griffin, following that of W. R. Tabler of Parkersburg, recently announced, fills the two vacancies created by the resignations of Hayes Picklesimer and W. B. Holden. The corps of assistant commissioners also includes E. L. Morrison, W. R. Seal, George M. Weekly, Marion Workman, O. S. Sumers and Harold Sayre.

Griffin's place in the federal service has been taken by William H. Cole, a former mayor of Clarksburg and former sheriff of Harrison county.

HIGHWAY WORK TO BE DEFERRED

Work on improving the stretch of roadway between Chester and the Pennsylvania state line which was planned for this year will probably be deferred until the work is completed on the other end of the highway.

This move will be made necessary, it is stated, by the fact that contractors who will be in charge of the big improvement job will be required to have their supplies shipped to Chester and will have to use this road to reach the work.

URGE FARMERS TO GROW OWN SEED

E. S. Bayard, editor of the National Stockman and Farmer, while in attendance at the annual Farmers' Week at Morgantown advocated that that West Virginia farmers grow their own seed.

In his opinion, this could be successfully done at many of the higher altitudes of the state. Mr. Bayard mentioned Preston county and Mineral county as being well suited for such a project. He feels that the present movement throughout the state on the part of the farmers to secure native grown rather than imported seed is a good one and will result in greatly increased crop.

His reason for advocating that an effort be made to produce much of the seed locally was that the higher altitudes of the state approximate the same climatic conditions as those farther north where much of the native seed is grown, with the additional advantage that seed produced within the state would not only be adapted as to climate conditions but more nearly so as to selling conditions. He also maintained that this would keep many thousands of dollars in the state that would otherwise have to be sent out for seeds.

PASTOR CONDUCTS REVIVAL MEETS

Evangelistic services will be held every evening this week in the First Methodist Episcopal church in charge of Rev. R. C. Ehrheart. The meetings yesterday were largely attended. The sermon subject tonight will be: "Whatever a Man Soweth That Shall He Also Reap." The meetings will close next Sunday.

Queen Esther Class Meeting. Members of the Queen Esther class of the Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Charles Mansfield, Phoenix avenue.

The business session will be followed by a social hour.

EAST END

SPECIAL MEETS DRAW LARGELY

Large crowds attended the services yesterday in the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church where special meetings are being conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Stokes.

Services will be held every night this week with the exception of Saturday. Special music will be featured.

Lodgemen To Meet. Members of Pennova lodge No. 880, I. O. O. F., will meet in regular session Thursday evening in their rooms in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Business matters will be discussed.

GRAND JURY TO MEET MARCH 15

Members of the Hancock county grand jury will report for duty at New Cumberland on Monday, March 8. Large number of cases are being prepared for investigation by Prosecuting Attorney Thomas S. Hoffman. Petit jurors will report one week later when trials will begin before Judge J. Harold Brennan of Wheeling, who will preside during the term.

Revival Launched. Rev. H. N. Dickerson, of Ashland, Ky., opened a series of evangelistic meetings yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Nazarene. Services will be held every night for several weeks. Prayer services will precede the preaching each night.

Vestry to Meet. Officers will be elected this evening at a meeting of vestrymen of the St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church. Number of other matters will be taken up for discussion at this session.

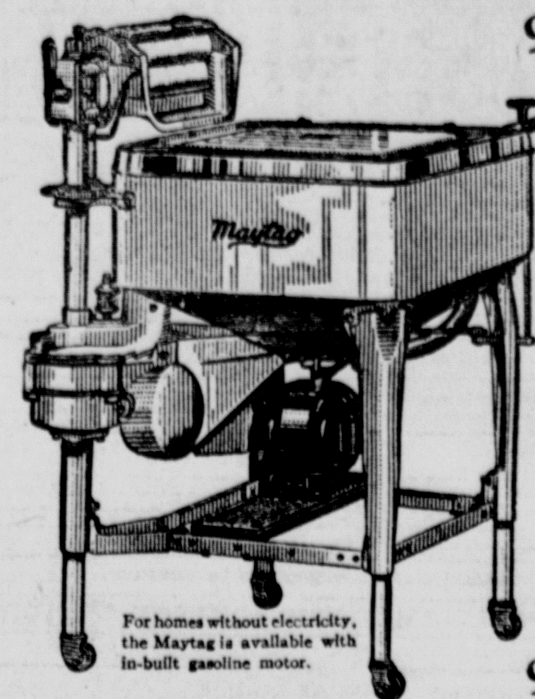

BEAVER ROADS TO BE IMPROVED

Announcement is expected to be made this week by the Pennsylvania state highway department of an additional number of roads to be improved this summer in the western section of the state including several in Beaver county. Program presented to the state officials several weeks ago by members of the county commissioners at Harrisburg.

Scouts in Jamboree. Members of the East End Boy Scout troop will participate in the district jamboree to be held this evening in the Y. M. C. A. Members of the various troops from the entire district will take in a series of events arranged by the executive council.

P. H. C. Meeting. Regular meeting of Eureka circle No. 88, Protected Home Circle, will be held tomorrow evening in the Hill building, Mulberry street. Routine business will be transacted.

Song Service Here. Song service was featured last night at the services in the Second Presbyterian church when a number of old time hymns were sang under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Ferguson.

DINING ROOM SUITES $112 to $185

This seems the popular price range in dining room suites and for that reason we feature them for February Sale. Not a suite in the lot that is not $50 under price, and some as much $85 less than the regular retail prices—if it is "buying time" for you, this is an opportunity to select from a wonderful showing—and to save a handsome sum of dollars.

LIVING ROOM SUITES $145, $200 and $275

Another big shipment just unloaded and placed on sample. These are the most exceptional values we have ever shown—we are enthusiastic about them and so are our customers if we can judge by the quantity selling.

Safety Week Observance Here

The Lions' club should have the co-operation of the pedestrian as well as the motorist in the proposed observance of Safety Week in East Liverpool—a campaign that has for its purpose a decrease in the appalling toll of life and injuries exacted in traffic accidents.

The police department and school officials have pledged their aid in the movement, in which the safety of the city's 5,500 school children is to be emphasized.

Where to put the automobiles is a pressing problem in every growing city. Yet the question where to put the pedestrians is becoming still more pressing.

The streets are there for the cars to run on. It is a problem of more and wider and straighter streets, with rounder corners, and of providing, in some miraculous way, more space for parking. Engineers can take care of that, given enough scope and money.

But the pedestrians? They multiply, if possible, more rapidly than the motor cars. They are always getting in the way of those cars. They swarm over every crossing, and between crossing. They overflow the sidewalks. They and the cars have got to be kept apart, for mutual safety, on the streets and on bridges and other passageways. How is that to be accomplished?

The answer is a common sense observance of rules of safety on the part of men, women and children who use the streets.

The Pie Champion

Would you believe it? When they held a champion pie contest at a state food show in Cincinnati the other day, the first prize was won by a man. No, not a pie-eating contest—a pie-baking contest. The winner wasn't a professional, either, but a mere husband and business man.

The pie was an apple pie, of such incredible delicacy, lusciousness and substantial merit that nobody has yet had the nerve to attempt a verbal description. The artist who made it is Henry J. Krohne. There was a sensational denouement when the judges, solemnly awarding the prize of a $125 clothes drier to Mrs. Krohne, were told by that modest housewife that it was not she, but Henry, who deserved the drier and the glory.

Henry, you see, has a flair for pies. He discovered it by accident one time, and now he bakes them all. Mrs. Krohne does the rest of the baking and cooking, but never touches a pie. She is an intelligent woman, and knows and respects genius when she sees it. As for Henry, he has a lovely time making those pies—not to mention eating them. But Henry is modest. He shrinks from the fame that has come to him.

This little story is passed on for the benefit of a sex that is threatened with eclipse in this feminine age. Man lives by food. Man is what he eats. The crown of culinary perfection is a good apple pie. A man makes the best apple pie—in Ohio, at least. In how many another home and state is there a masculine talent blushing unseen?

Let genius be sought for and recognized. Give man a chance at the rolling pin and pastry-board. Bigger, better pies is our slogan, and we must have them even though it drags men from the office, the factory or the professorial chair.

Putting Youth In Opera

Feodor Chaliapin, the great Russian singer, is planning to go on the road, not in personal concert tours, but with an opera produced and managed by himself. He has chosen the "Barber of Seville" for his first attempt. Later he expects to write an opera-etta and produce that.

The most interesting thing about his enterprise is not the fact that a star plans to go into opera production. It lies in the methods he expects to use. Chaliapin explains:

"Long ago I conceived the idea of touring in a single opera, appearing in big cities and in smaller places as well. But the producers offered me old scenery—and old singers. Impossible! I insist upon youth. No worn out sopranos and tenors for me. I will be the oldest in my company—and I will be the boss. Maybe I boast, but it will be the finest production you have ever seen."

Humble opera-enjoyers, living far from the great music centers but wishing for an opportunity to hear good opera oftener, have sometimes thought that opera was really handicapped by traditional matters of production. New scenery, youthful singers and actors, fresh inspiration for the whole thing, might do the cause of opera much good and thereby increase popular enjoyment of it "in big cities and in smaller places."

Courts And Business

An eminent lawyer speaking to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World says: "Not for a generation have the courts, the administration and the American public been so friendly toward business, both big and little, as they are today. The supreme court decisions last June in the trade association cases were epoch-making. They breathed a keener appreciation of American economic forces and a greater sympathy for resulting business conditions than the supreme court had evinced since 1911, when the court first read the 'rule of reason' into the anti-trust laws."

Those who fear Florida may be over-crowded might go to Northern British Columbia or Alaska instead. It is reported that those places are "suffering from lack of their usual winter snow."

The Little Scorpion's Club—

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

AT SEA, Feb. 8.—We are aboard a coast-wise steamer headed for Florida to be sun-kissed—or maybe it is in California you get that—and meet the realtors. New York shivered in the chill of winter. A few trees in Madison Square were furred with snow.

A muffled young man on 23d street trudged along with skates over his arm. I was tempted to yell "Yoo-hoo!" and wave a pair of white flannel trousers. He will be entitled to his laugh perhaps, later when a mosquito selects my wan cheek for a sinking spell.

My interest on the steamer centered upon a thin, pale professorial young man with a bleached Van Dyke. He reminded one of those scholarly fellows kodaked in pith helmets poking around the Egyptian pyramids in the travel magazines.

He had the detached aloofness of a Pom on the front seat of a limousine with a liveried chauffeur. At night he was a solitary stardrinker on the promenade deck. He went the way of all illusions when he proved to be the leader of a New York jazz band being imported to Florida.

He swung the baton for "mammy" tunes. A Broadway touch was provided by the chorus and principals of a revue passing on the way to a coast resort to enliven visiting firemen. A dark, Spanish and vampish lady was known among the troupe as "The Mexican Wildcat."

She whirled away the tedium of deck loungers by promenading with a hairless chihuahua encased in sweaters the hue of her frocks. And a little pony chorine from "Gawg-la" was so happy over returning south she hopped about like a jumping bean.

Once she skipped away with a "Good-bye, you all," tripped over a door sill and did a complete somersault without missing a puff of her cigarette. "All in her act" wise-cracked the comedian of the company. The ship is an old but seaworthy trans-Atlantic liner that ploughs through a placid sea.

Will Hoge, who is in our party, brought along King Jet, a magnificent black Persian cat, and Bonzo, a dog of whose genealogy I am in doubt. I am inclined to suspect a scandal in her family. She drags the cat around by the neck and oyes at it with a look that suffers the silence of the well bred. My Boston has formed a rather unusual attachment for the chief butcher. His motives I imagine are altogether ulterior. After all he was reared in New York.

The captain is a genial and hardy Swede whose talk explodes like a bottle of pop. He pounces into the dining room at intervals to make "got together" speeches. He is a rather wholesome relief from the usual stiff and starchy liner captains. "Vat I want is it you should get acquainted. We are just one big family," he Weber-fields over and over again.

No ocean voyage is complete these days without an official souce. Ours is a tall, black-haired young man who got on—or rather was poured on—at the New York pier. The advance guard of realtors are aboard and he hunts them out with: "What I want is a big roomy room that is roomy." If he keeps it up he will need such a room to park a headache.

Most of the three-day voyagers are usual tourist types—retired mid-west farmers and their wives, elderly spinsters who are climate chasers, bridal couples and the usual followers of every new booming Eldorado. Some are going to Florida to remain, others to loil on the sand and others are poe-eyed with the frenzy of fortune-hunting. One day out and they are talking in millions. Tomorrow it will be billions. And by the time we arrive they will turn their collars—and take the first job that comes along.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Hawaii Prospers

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—In marked contrast to his rather pessimistic and deprecating remarks concerning the Territory of Alaska, Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work calls a new tune in his statements about the Territory of Hawaii in his annual report. Pessimism gives way to optimism and uneasiness to enthusiasm in this section of the Secretary's report which reviews the life and progress of Hawaii in 1925.

Basing his statements upon the report of Wallace R. Farrington, Governor of Hawaii, Secretary Work begins his remarks by saying: "The Territory has enjoyed a steady growth and continued prosperity and quite the most striking feature of the year's progress, 1924-25, is the widespread recognition of the strategic importance of the harbors of the principal islands to the Nation and in the service of the developing commerce of the great Pacific area. Progress of the agricultural industries is very gratifying. The sugar and pineapple enterprises have harvested the largest crop on record. The sale price of both sugar and canned pineapples has ruled lower than the previous year, but the total income of the Territory is not materially reduced. The coffee industry has held its own through many vicissitudes and now offers a fair prospect of advancement on account of the distinctive and attractive quality of the Kona brand."

In the 25 years that Hawaii has been a Territory of the United States it has paid into the Federal Treasury an amount in excess of $117,000,000. During the past year it paid more than $7,500,000, and, as there is a rapid growth in population and a great advance in the development of the Territory, it is not unreasonable to believe that this amount will increase greatly in the future. The prosperity and financial soundness of the people were reflected in the bank deposits of $61,000,000, the highest on record, although the savings accounts were slightly less than the previous year. The Governor of Hawaii and Secretary Work account for this phenomenon by the people who are the biggest savings depositors investing heavily in homes.

Death Rate Declines

Hawaii seems to enjoy good health. Its shrinking death rate and its increasing birth rate indicate a healthy condition. There has been no serious epidemic in the Territory during the past year, which attests to the excellent sanitary condition of the islands. This is more striking when it is considered that the ports are in an extremely exposed position in relation to trans-Pacific traffic. Tuberculosis continues to take the heaviest toll of any disease. Measures and regulations for the control and cure of leprosy are having an excellent effect.

The labor situation in Hawaii is favorable. The year witnessed the rise and fall of a disturbance among Filipino laborers which was designed to bring about a general walk-out on the sugar plantations by the workers. This, however, failed to crystallize because of the widespread contentment prevailing among the laborers. These people are well cared for and have been given liberal programs for increasing their incomes through planting contracts. There is at present no shortage of labor in the main industries. The agitation among the sugar planters was said to be the work of Japanese newspapers.

There is no other sugar-producing country in the world where the laborers and their families are better cared for and better paid or better rewarded for their work than Hawaii. Likewise there is new opportunity for the small farmer who wishes to set

Florida draws the fit and misfit from all corners of the world. It is the new melting pot. And so I am going to loil on the hot sands and do a little melting myself.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

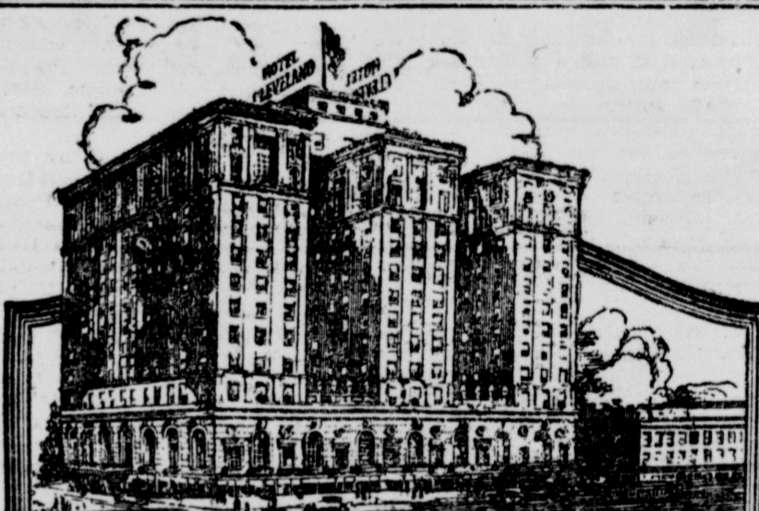

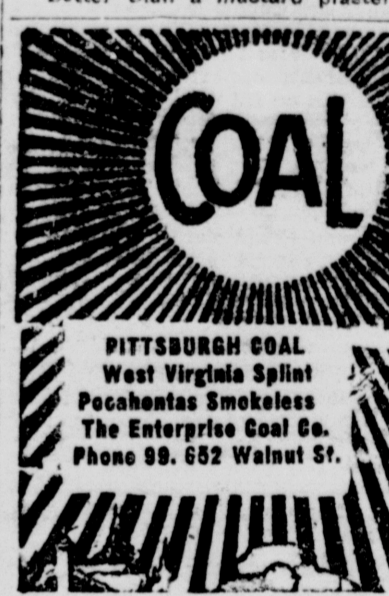

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister.

Rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Echols-Larcombe Wedding, Solemnized Saturday, Announced

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Mildred Echols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Echols of Daisy avenue, to Charles Larcombe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larcombe of Riverview street. The ceremony was performed Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the parsonage of the Presbyterian church of Lisbon, with Rev. P. W. Macaulay officiating. The attendants were Miss Dorothy Larcombe, a sister of the bridegroom, and Leonard Echols, a brother of the bride.

The bride was gowned in green tulle, with hat to match, and her corsage was of sweetpeas and bride's roses. The maid-of-honor wore a tan tulle dress with hat to match, and carried roses and sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the home of the bride's parents, covers being arranged for the members of the immediate families. Centering the table was a wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom, from which streamers of pink and white ribbon were attached to a heart-shaped bonbon basket and cupids at each place. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. James Larcombe Sr., Mrs. Mary Granger of Trenton, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. William Townley, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Neal, Mr. and Mrs. William Echols and daughters, Misses Nina and Florence, Leonard Neal, Albert and Miss Nina Townley.

YOUR HEALTH

Neat and Clean Dress Aids Physical Well Being

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHAT about a hair cut and a shave, a shoe shine and a fresh crease in your trousers? You are feeling down and out. Things aren't going right. You can see and think nothing but disaster.

You have permitted your hair to get long and shaggy. Your necktie is crumpled. Your shoes are shabby and run down at the heel.

No wonder you have lost ambition and enthusiasm and perhaps your job, too. You can't look like a tramp all the time without acting like one. Nobody wants to associate with a trampish-looking person.

I honor the men and women who do the world's labor. They must dress accordingly. I course, But they never fail to clean up and dress neatly after working hours. No matter how poor you are, you can make yourself presentable. Unless you are spruced up, you will lose your self respect. What we call "personality" will come away if person and dress are neglected.

Foppishness and over-dressing are to me almost as offensive as neglect of dress. There is a middle ground, however, which should be popular with everybody. Nothing is more important to the physical welfare than to have the right mental attitude. Unless the mind is at peace with the world, there are restlessness, unhappiness, worry and too many times thoughts of suicide.

You will be astonished, if you haven't thought of it, how the mind is influenced by the manner of dress. If you don't believe it, get your hair cut put on your good clothes, have your shoes polished a 'wink down the busiest street.

You will find yourself looking in the shop windows, not to study the display but to admire your own reflection. You will hold your head higher, breathe deeper and step more vigorously than for days before. Many individuals are cocky because they are well-dressed and know they are well-dressed. You may not like such folks and probably don't like them, but they are happy and consequently they are healthy.

Almost the most important thing in a successful health program is a placid mind. There can be no placidity without self-respect, and it is surprising, perhaps, but verily true, that the reflex effect upon the mental processes.

Bear in mind the advice of Polonius to Laertes: "Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy."

But not expressed in fancy; rich, not gaudy; For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

BRITAIN URGES BUYING PUBLIC TRADE AT HOME

LESS IDLENESS

Appeal Made to Hasten Prosperity for Empire.

LONDON.—"Buy British Goods and Trade Will Improve" is the slogan put forth by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the board of trade, to the British public.

Sir Phillip is optimistic as to the future of British industrial prosperity. He gives three reasons for his hopes:

1.—Less unemployment in many industries.

2.—A new sense of security and peace in Europe.

3.—A steadily growing national recognition of the importance of the home market.

"The home market," says Sir Phillip, "has never been more important than it is today. Export trade cannot exist without it. It is necessary to enable us to produce cheaply and yield a surplus."

Imperial Development.

"I welcome the growing recognition of the vast possibilities of Imperial development. Before the war the Empire sent us less than 25 per cent of the total volume of our imports; today they send us more than 29 per cent and the trade is growing and growing fast."

"Imperial trade has become the policy by common consent within the Empire, and if a vote were taken it would be found that there is an overwhelming majority in every part of the Empire in favor of Imperial Preference and not the least in Britain."

"The government is anxious and willing to help trade to the utmost capacity, and I urge manufacturers to study the markets and foster new demands from them. Where it is found that industries are losing trade to foreign competitors, I urge the consideration of combined selling organizations in markets where we are being undersold, also combined publicity. "I look forward to increased commercial prosperity and the outlook for the future is more than bright."

Assisting Trade.

Some of the great business concerns of Britain are following the lead of the government in assisting scientifically Britain's trade.

The London and North Eastern railroad, practically the largest in Britain, has put a new clause in its contracts relating to goods produced from manufactured steel. It states that these goods: "must be of British manufacture throughout."

This decision has now been followed by all the other great railroad companies.

Each year the British rail companies spend about $260,000,000 on rolling stock, permanent way and improvement. The decision means that henceforward all this sum will have to be spent in Britain and that American tenders will be ruled out. Some experts estimate that this means giving employment to 110,000 more men.

Prospects Hopeful.

Another optimist with regard to

British trade is M. J. Sandeman Allen, M. P., chairman of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce.

"Trade prospects," he says in an address to his members, "are more hopeful than they have been for a long time past."

"There is more confidence, and more orders are being placed, not in one, but in many trades, than for a long time past. India has become more settled. Egypt is quiet, and we have re-established our commercial relations with Mexico."

"Trade is improving in our colonies, particularly in East and West Africa. The lifting of the embargo on foreign loans has done good. . . . People are now investing more freely and not locking their money up as before."

Crating for automobiles to be shipped from this to other countries this year will require more than 74,000,000 feet of lumber.

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60 cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

HIGH DEFEATED
AT CARROLLTON

Drop 26-10 Decision
Game.

Unable to locate the baskets consistently, Wellsville high school passers were defeated Saturday night at Carrollton by the score of 26 to 10.

The defensive tactics of the Carrollton team was one of the outstanding features of the engagement. The home crew permitted the Orange and Black but three field goals, two of which were registered by Wilson, who substituted for Hunter, and the other by Calhoun.

Scott, Carrollton forward, was high point maker, with five field goals and three fouls, half his team's score.

Both the boys' and the girls' teams will be in action on Friday night at Columbiana. An additional contest this week with Chester is under consideration.

MURPHY DEFEATS
HILL AMENDMENT

Upholding prohibition and provisions of the Volstead law according to the policy he announced in his last public appearance in Wellsville, on the occasion of an address before the Kiwanis club, Congressman Frank Murphy, of Steubenville, Saturday led the attack on the proposed Hill amendment increasing a deficiency appropriation for the United States coast guard from $3,900,000 to $14,994,000 in its fight on rum runners, stirring the house to an uproarous demonstration. The amendment was defeated, 110 to 8.

Murphy asserted the motherhood of the country is being maligned in reply to charges of Representative Sabbath, of Illinois, that the present prohibition laws are responsible for crime conditions and the debauching of boys and girls throughout the land.

"Advocates of nullification of the eighteenth amendment," said Mr. Murphy, "are charging that the children of America are being debauched by reason of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. The motherhood of the country is being maligned as it never was before by that contemptible kind of villification—that our young girlhood and womanhood is not as clean, sweet, and wholesome as it was in the days of our mothers."

"Of all contemptible arguments that have been put forth to justify changing this law, that of all, is the lowest down. There is no place in hell quite deep enough for it."

"I am advocating only an increase in this appropriation for law enforcement," interrupted Mr. Hill.

TUESDAY NIGHT

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church will convene tomorrow evening at the church. A covered supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

The regular meeting of the organization will follow at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Bruce Weaver as leader. Mrs. Samuel Dushman will have charge of the devotionals.

SET HIGH MARK
IN ATTENDANCE

Teachers and students of the local public school system will have a high mark to shoot at this month in the matter of attendance.

Students will have to show an average of better than 95 per cent throughout the entire system to hang up a new record. The 95 per cent rating was reached in January and a half-holiday for all the pupils was their reward.

WILL GIVE TALK ON INSURANCE

Members of the Wellsville Kiwanis club will hear a discussion on insurance at their noon luncheon meeting tomorrow in the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Morris Cahill, representative of the Edward A. Works Co. of Pittsburgh, agents for the Equitable Life of New York, will be the club's guest and chief speaker.

Youth Kills Two, Wounds Seven, in 12-Hour Seige

Barriering himself in the house shown in the photograph, Clinton W. Hollingsworth, 20-year-old youth, held off a posse of police and citizens of Springfield, Mo., for 12 hours, killing two and wounding seven in the seige before he finally surrendered because he ran out of ammunition. The flashlight picture of the house shows the crowd that gathered after the smoke of the gun battle had cleared. Police found a young arsenal in the house after they had captured the youth. He is being held in jail pending a hearing on the murder charges.

VETS WILL SHOW
WAR MOVIE HERE

Plans for the presentation of a moving picture portraying the story of the World war, will be discussed at a meeting of Corporal Dan Duty post, No. 180, Veterans of Foreign Wars, tonight at their headquarters in upper Main street.

Commander William Dolby announced today that the local post expects to present "Men of Purpose" at the high school auditorium Feb. 22-23. Tickets will be placed on sale by the Ladies' auxiliary.

INDIANS BURROW
FOR QUICKSILVER

Live in Silent Villages Deserted Years Ago.

Alpine, Texas.—Burrowing in the rugged mountains of southwest Texas, stolid Indians today are mining for its treasure of quicksilver, the blood-red ore their forefathers used as war paint.

The miners live in villages that are silent as the tomb. Far beneath the surface they spend their waking hours taking from the hills a heritage which civilization discovered and claims as its own.

Tarlinque and Waldron, 90 miles from a railroad, are the center of a district where the expected opening of a new mine may give Texas first rank in the United States' production of quicksilver. The state now ranks second.

For thirty years hardy men have been undermining the mountains for the cinnabar ore from which mercury is extracted. One company has produced $10,000,000 worth of shimmering metal during the last quarter of a century.

The miners are Indians and Mexicans and the villages are of adobe huts. During the day, while the men are in the ground, the women remain in the houses and silence is rarely broken. The streets between the rows of squat dwellings are deserted except for the occasional appearance of an Indian woman carrying water in two rawhide buckets suspended from a pole across her shoulder, in primitive fashion.

One of the mines contains an immense cavern, which is reached by a 50-foot ladder, placed there years ago by the primitive tribes. The surrounding bluffs are decorated with many Indian pictographs and hieroglyphs in red pigment.

Mule Colt to Replace
Texas' Old Gray Mare

Brownwood, Texas.—A small brown mule may take the place of the old gray mare in the affections of Texas Legionnaires. Sarah, for five years mascot of the Old Gray Mare band, died suddenly and left as her heir and offspring, a mule colt.

The old gray mare attended the American Legion conventions in San Francisco and St. Paul, besides numerous conventions in Texas. She reached the climax in her career when she bore May Peterson, former prima donna of the Metropolitan Grand Opera company, up the steps of the Texas capitol at Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's inauguration.

Sarah was one of the most traveled animals in America. She usually rode in a specially constructed box car. Once while en route to San Francisco the band stopped at Denver for a rest, leaving Sarah loose in the car. The band struck up the "Old Gray Mare" tune just outside the car, and Sarah, thinking it was her cue, jumped from the car and placed herself in her customary position at the head of the band.

CRIPPLED LADS FIGHT FOR BOY
SCOUT HONOR BADGE; GET IT

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—What can a feller do if Fate, in handing out backs, deals him a crooked one?

Or if Fate, in handing out legs and arms, deals him ones that do not function in the regular way? Or if normal back, legs and arms are denied him through accident?

One upon a time Harry Weyle and Joe Julliano here asked themselves those questions.

But just the other day Harry and Joe stood side by side with other boys in the largest court of honor ever held in Rochester and received achievement badges for Boy Scout work—awards made especially to crippled Boy Scouts who have met the requirements of the organization. They correspond to the Golden Eagle Scout award for physically whole boys—for it is the highest award that can be given to a crippled Boy Scout. Only seven of these badges have been awarded in the whole United States.

Back of the award of these badges lies a story. Both boys owe their rise not only to their own pluck, but also to the world-famed Rochester School for Crippled Children.

Infantile paralysis had brought Joe's affliction. His only way of locomotion was to lie flat on his stomach and drag himself along by the manipulation of his elbows.

Joe was sent to the School for Crippled Children.

Doctors and dietitians took hold of his case. He spent weeks in the hospital, there were a number of operations, and finally there came the happy day when Joe could walk on crutches. Life became happy and free.

Harry Weyle, besides having been crippled in babyhood by infantile paralysis, was considerably handicapped by bad health.

Today Harry has a gleam before him of a professional career and he is following that gleam with a persistence and courage. He is in junior high school making a clean-cut record and his love of Scout work is no less intense than that of Joe Julliano.

WILL FIGHT BAN ON CORN SUGAR

Bill to Solve Crop Surplus in Congress.

Washington.—Asserting that they have the backing of more than a million farmers and business men of the corn belt, Iowa congressmen have begun a determined fight to solve the corn surplus problem by removing restrictions on the sale of corn sugar now imposed by the pure food act.

In this way they hope to build up a new market which will consume millions of bushels of corn each year and eventually take over the entire annual surplus.

There are no restrictions now on the manufacture of corn sugar, but under the pure food act, all products in which corn sugar is used must be specially branded and labeled to show that corn sugar and not beet or cane sugar was used.

This restriction, it is asserted, has proved a great handicap to the marketing of corn sugar, as the enforced labeling is asserted to carry with it "the stigma of inferiority."

In order to remove this restriction a bill has been introduced in the senate by Senator Cummins (Rep., Iowa) and in the house by Representative Cole (Rep., Iowa). The bill provides for amending the pure food law so that corn sugar products will be added to the list of articles that are not deemed misbranded if not specially labeled.

To the farmers of Iowa and Illinois, who have been forced to accept low prices for corn, largely because of the surplus, increased manufacture of corn sugar would offer a new market for larger quantities of corn. Already thousands of letters have been sent to mid-western congressmen and to the Department of Agriculture urging the immediate passage of legislation which will remove the present restrictions on the sale of corn sugar products.

"If the restrictions are removed and corn sugar can be marketed in large quantities, it means that the total yearly surplus of corn will be sold to food manufacturing plants," Mr. Cole declared. "This undoubtedly would mean increased prosperity for the whole corn belt."

The Department of Agriculture is not so sure that the proposed change in the pure food act would be a good thing. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine is giving close study to the problem, and while anxious to see the sale of corn sugar exploited, he is undecided as to whether changing the pure food law is the best way to do it.

Growth of the use of electric power is transferring the making of watches in Switzerland from the homes of factories.

What? Pains in Your Side, Back and Head?

"Three years ago I had a bad spell of feminine weakness," said Mrs. L. R. Edwards of 128 W. 8th St., Cincinnati, Ohio. "I could hardly get up when I sat down. I had pains in back and side and my head would ache until I would have to go to bed and stay until it went away. But Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did wonders for me. I took six bottles and am glad to tell every woman that before I had taken four bottles my pains had entirely left me. It is a wonderful tonic for women."

Why is it necessary to urge a woman to take care of her health? Isn't it her most valuable asset?

30 ENTRANTS IN AMERICAN VENUS CONTEST

"Miss Columbian" Will be Chosen at Ceramic.

ONE MORE DAY

Girls, Compare Your Measurement With Miss Lanphier's.

Entry list in the Review-Tribune's competition to find the "American Venus" in Columbian county will close tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. More than 30 young women have entered their names with Mrs. Harl Mast, contest editor, who will act as supervisor and judge.

This contest, which has aroused great interest, is being held in connection with the showing of the film, "The American Venus" which opened today at the Ceramic theatre, with Miss Fay Lanphier, who won the national beauty contest last September in Atlantic City, appearing in the title role.

The contestant whose measurements come closest to that of "Miss America" (Miss Lanphier) will be designated as "Miss Columbian," and will be awarded a bronze statuette and $25.

A motion picture pass for two persons good for three months to the Ceramic theatre will be the second award.

A three months' subscription to Review-Tribune is the third prize.

Tree Survey Report

Chamber of Commerce. This committee included: Wilson Smith, chairman; John Kell, Joseph T. Croxall, Lee C. Cooper and Ralph Couch. This was the first attempt to obtain a comprehensive report of conditions in East Liverpool and so far as is known where such a complete report has been made for any city in the state.

The object was to determine the outstanding needs of the community with respect to the existing trees and the future planting.

"Under the present system of management the city government has control only of trees which are within the confines of parks and other city property, or those adjacent there to in streets and alleys," the report says. "Trees along streets and avenues in general are to all intents and purposes the property of adjacent owners, and are in their hands for planting and subsequent care."

Too Many Silver Maple

"The selection of species, conditions and care of street trees in East Liverpool are about the average as found in Ohio cities. There are no outstanding examples of early street plantings which might be termed ideal from the aspect of choice of species or arrangement. Like most every village and city in Ohio, East Liverpool streets were early overplanted with the silver maple, and the error in such choice of species and condition of the silver maple trees. The silver maple was early chosen by nurserymen as a street tree of merit, because of its rapid growth. Aside from this feature and a fairly good appearing foliage, the species has nothing to recommend it.

"The street trees as well as the general appearance of the streets as a whole would have been improved had the trees in most cases been set wider apart. However this is a common error in all early shade tree plantings in practically every village and city. It is now difficult to practice thinning on many of the East Liverpool streets, although there is ample opportunity for this kind of work."

"An example of a well conceived and designed planting plan is found surrounding the Carnegie library. On Thompson hill is a line of European plane trees recently planted. These trees are planted about 13 feet apart, and are well and adequately protected from street injury by metal tree guards. The European plane is a splendid tree with few objectionable features. Thompson park, splendidly located, will undoubtedly grow in popularity for recreation in the near future. The area contains some fine trees, and considerable development work has been undertaken in the way of shrubbery and flower planting. It is suggested that a few red oak or scarlet oak shade trees be placed in the more open spaces. This will introduce some long lived trees in the plantings, which eventually will be places of struggle where it cannot survive. History is full of hangings, quarterings, bonfires, beheadings that tell of the man or woman of pure gold used in the wrong place.

Poor Joan of Arc, burned alive when her work was done—she represents an attempt to make an incisor of pure gold. She lasted as long as she could—but she could not last. Pero Marquette was another of the pure gold being worn away because they were too good for the world's conditions. Giordano Bruno was another. The man who really invented the sewing machine is never heard of. He consented to give up his idea and forego all profit when his wife pointed out to him that his discovery meant starvation for thousands of poor sewing women—his was of pure gold—but too soft for this world.

Some men, perhaps, will find a way of hardening gold so that its absolute purity and atomic integrity will be able to fight against the baser and harder metals.

That is guesswork.

But this is sure and no guesswork: Humanity in time will devise such protection for its members, such recognition of high merit, as will make it possible even for a man of pure golden character to survive and succeed against the material conditions of life. When that day comes we shall have our real leaders and our true teachers. We shall no longer look always to some tragic failure for our inspiration. Today it is the martyr's death, the room where Socrates drank his poison, the streets where Savonarola was hooted by the men he died for that haunted us of our few men made of pure gold.

Some day, like the pure gold filling in the solid black tooth with its walls of enamel, the golden men will find conditions that protect them. Speed the day.

And meanwhile—have a kindly feeling and a kind word for the man who has failed at your side. Perhaps he has been worn away because his character is truer, purer than yours.

Many a failure with sad eyes and hopeless look would have been among the world's successes had his metal been less pure.

Did you ever think of the number of successes due to bad qualities, the great fortunes built on base metal?

Reference to City Park

There is a newly acquired area adjacent to the City hospital of about one and one-half acres, which is practically undeveloped. Situated as it is near the heart of the city it will undoubtedly serve a considerable number of people during each summer season. Owing to its proximity to the hospital it use as a children's playground would be impractical.

"A small parcel of land now vacant near the city reservoir can be planted with the common varieties of shrubbery with such trees as red oak, scarlet oak or oriental plane. While the slopes are steep it is impossible to place rest benches within the area and beautify the place in a way that it would be an attractive spot for that section of the city."

"Tree surgery or tree repair has been employed to some extent in East Liverpool and in many cases has been helpful in the care of trees. An especially important feature of this work is that of pruning. In this connection it seems well to call attention to the pernicious practice of "topping" trees. This practice is no more common in East Liverpool than elsewhere, but there are evidences of its employment."

Committee Recommendations

Along the line of recommendations the report says:

"To beautify a city by street and park plantings requires a plan of control and harmonious effect, and a definite knowledge of all the principles involved. Under present conditions in East Liverpool property owners are permitted to determine the status of tree plantings along the street by virtue of their rights as abutters. Under municipal control not only can trees be selected for new plants with proper attention to variable soil with moisture requirements, smoke and gas conditions, proper spacing and uniformity, but general insect control can prevail and proper protection and management can be given to the existing trees. While East Liverpool is at present remarkably free from injurious insects, no one has the right to assume that this condition will prevail. Hence any plan for the future should include adequate provision for this part of the work. Municipal control of shade trees is not an innovation in this country. Many cities, particularly in the east and some in Ohio, have adopted this plan, and it is eminently satisfactory."

"Close Planting Unsatisfactory. Close planting in East Liverpool is one of the most unsatisfactory features to contend with. It is far better to have one well developed tree of beautiful characteristic form in front of a property than half a dozen unsightly decrepit individuals. The promiscuous stringing of wires of various kinds throughout the tree crowns along the streets has caused damage to some of the trees in East Liverpool in the course of time. There is a tendency in some cases to prune the tops out of trees to accommodate the wires. This, of course, is a malpractice which should not be countenanced."

The report suggests the enactment of legislation by the council regulating planting and placing supervision and care of shade trees in the hands of "some well informed and competent city official." A fine of $100 for willful damaging trees and shrubbery would be provided by the terms of the ordinance. It is pointed out. Establishment of a municipal nursery where trees and shrubbery for use within the city could be grown is also suggested.

Urges More Beautiful City.

In conclusion the report says:

"We desire to express our appreciation to the representatives of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce and

New national Episcopal cathedral, in Washington, D. C., will be first "radio cathedral." A committee of experts headed by Maj. Gen. George O. Squier, inset, army signal corps, is advising the constructors regarding probable developments in wireless technique that they be structurally anticipated in the erection of the edifice, a part of which now is complete and radio-equipped.

SCOT EDITOR TRAIN VICTIM

Herbert Graham Dies When Express Wrecks His Auto.

LYNBROOK, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Herbert Graham, editor of the Lloyd C. Griscom publications on Long Island, and well-known to Scots throughout the country as editor of "The Scottish American," was killed early today when a Long Island Railroad train struck his automobile.

The body is being held, awaiting word from Graham's relatives in Kentucky. Graham apparently did not see the swiftly moving train. He drove his car directly onto the tracks. The train struck his car squarely in the middle, throwing it 50 feet against the side of a freight car on a siding.

Two years ago "The Scottish American," under Graham's leadership, attempted to raise $100,000 for the relief of famine conditions affecting 30,000 residents in Scotland.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—A good volume of selling orders awaited the opening of the market today as a result of the unexpected large aggregation of brokers' loans disclosed in the stock exchange's publication after the close of Saturday's market, and prices of industrial leaders sagged in the early trading. But losses were mostly fractional, and there was sufficient buying demand for all stocks offered to turn the tide of prices promptly, and with few exceptions prices were again headed upward before the end of the first half hour.

On the eve of important developments involving their possible merger, California Packing and Postum Cereal sold in large volume at declines of 3 to 11 points from Saturday's close. It was reported that directors of California packing company would consider officially today an offer of $185 a share for sufficient stock to carry control, but meanwhile heavy trading took place on the stock exchange at from 170 to 184. A loss of 15 points from last week's high, Postum Cereal at 116 showed a shrinkage of about 9 points from its recent high. Suggesting a possible "hitch" in the contemplated plan.

Judge J. C. Hanley Gives Judgment on Two Cognovit Notes

Two judgments on cognovit notes in favor of James S. Stevenson of Wellsville have been handed down by Municipal Judge Jesse C. Hanley. One of the judgments for $231.60 was against Joseph Hill of East Palestine. The other was against Frank B. Kays of Salineville for $56.40. David Thompson, Flint mill worker, was given a suspended 30 day jail sentence when he pleaded guilty to a charge of the non-support of his six-year-old son, after making arrangements to pay for the boy's support. He was arrested upon information of his former wife, Mrs. Geneva Covert. Ten arrests were made by the police over the week-end. Five of the offenders were charged with intoxication, three with disorderly conduct, while two were traffic violators. Horace Hawkwood, telephone company employee, was fined $1 and costs for fast and reckless driving. He was arrested on Second street by Captain Conley, Saturday afternoon.

In particular to Wilson F. Smith for the courtesies, extended to us while we were conducting the tree survey in your city. To these gentlemen and others who kindly assisted us are due our thanks.

"We wish to add also that the services of any of the scientific departments of the experiment station are at the disposal of the city of East Liverpool for any further counsel, conference or suggestions. We shall be glad to enter into co-operation in carrying forward the city forestry work. Our best wishes are with you in an effort to make better, bigger and a more beautiful East Liverpool."

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Delphia Murray.
Mrs. Delphia Marie Andrus Murray, 23 years old, died Saturday morning at 4:45 o'clock at Youngstown following a brief illness of complications.

She was the daughter of R. W. and Elizabeth Andrus. She was married to H. L. Murray on April 12, 1922. In addition to her husband she is survived by one daughter, Doris May, 3 years old; two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Wetzel, Follansbee, W. Va.; Mrs. J. M. Dalrymple, Sistersville, W. Va.; two brothers, L. E. Andrus, Harlem Springs, and C. A. Andrus, Follansbee, W. Va.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the home of F. H. Murray, Fifth street, Newell, in charge of Rev. W. D. Brock, pastor of the Christian church. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery.

Jacob Landfried.
Jacob Landfried 71 years old, died yesterday in his home, Erie street, East End.

He is survived by his widow, Louisa Landfried; five sons, Fred, Edward, Fred, Walter, Clyde; three daughters, Mrs. Charles Woods, Freda, all of this city; Mrs. William Reight, Wellsville, and one brother, Henry Junior Landfried, Frizna, Cal. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home, in charge of Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ. Burial will be made in Spring Grove cemetery.

Thomas Collins.
Mrs. Martha Newland was advised yesterday of the death of her nephew, Thomas Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Collins, former residents of East Liverpool, which occurred in Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. Newland, Ann Quinn and Richard Harley, this city, and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Fitzgerald and daughter of Wellsville, left today to attend the funeral.

Record Attendance At Revival Service In Baptist Church

One of the largest crowds which ever gathered within the First Baptist church crowded the edifice at the revival services last evening when Rev. Mel Morris, Maryland evangelist, spoke on the subject, "The Feast of Belshazzar."

The Sunday school room, aisles, corridors and every available foot of space was crowded and many persons are said to have been turned away. Thirty-five persons shook the hand of the evangelist at the close of the service as a testimony of their conversion.

The meetings will close Wednesday evening. The evangelist plans to return to his home at Greensboro, Md., on Thursday. His sermon subject for tonight's service will be "The Rich Fool."

94 Youths Attend Sunday Afternoon Club Meeting Here

Ninety-four young men, between the ages of 16 and 26, attended yesterday's meeting of the Sunday Afternoon Club held in the banquet hall of the Y. M. C. A.

O. W. Irwin, an executive of the Trucon Steel company, Youngstown, spoke on "Building from the Top Down." He compared the development of a life to the construction of a building.

"We do not start a building with the foundation," he asserted. "First we must get the location, then decide upon the architect and plan the building. The building is planned from the top down and built from the top up. In the same manner we must locate our lives, plan and build them." Special music was furnished by the Melody trio. Chorus singing was a feature. Refreshments were served.

WARNING AGAINST DUMPING ASHES

Property owners and all citizens will take notice that depositing ashes and other rubbish on the streets and alleys is forbidden by city ordinance and offenders will be promptly prosecuted.

SCOUTS READY FOR JAMBOREE

Seven Troops are Entered in Frolic at Y. M. C. A.

Seven Boy Scout troops of the East Liverpool-Wellsville-Chester-Newell districts have been entered in the jamboree, which will be held in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight in connection with the 15th anniversary of the movement which is being celebrated this week.

Four of the entries which had been filed at Boy Scout headquarters here up to noon today are from East Liverpool, two from Wellsville and one from Chester. Those from this city are: Troop 1 of the Pennsylvania Avenue M. E. church; Troop 5 of the First Presbyterian church; Troop 6 of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Troop 7 of St. Aloysius Catholic church.

Wellsville troops entered in the contest are: Troop No. 1, sponsored by the Wellsville Kiwanis club, and Troop 3 of the Immaculate Conception church. The other entry is Troop No. 1 of Chester.

The jamboree will consist of various sports and will be in charge of Harry Wilson, county Scout executive. The public is invited.

Members of Troop No. 7 attended Mass in the St. Aloysius church at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Other troops plan to attend divine services next Sunday.

several months of investigation by the department of justice.

"These investigations developed facts which in the opinion of the department, evidence a clear intention on the part of those responsible for the mergers eventually to bring together the several merged companies under control of one gigantic corporation," Attorney General Sargent said. "The formation of the Ward Food Products corporation for the evident purpose of consummating that plan was the immediate cause of filing the suit."

Government's Demands.

The government's petition makes the following salient demands:

1. That the ward interest be adjudged to have violated the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton act.
2. That defendants be enjoined from doing any act in furtherance of alleged conspiracy, combination and attempt to monopolize food products.
3. That the Ward Baking, Continental Baking, General Baking and Ward Food Products corporations be enjoined from acquiring the whole or part of the stock or physical assets of the others.
4. That the defendants be enjoined perpetually having any directors, officer, agent or employee in common with each other.
5. That they be enjoined from entering any contracts, agreements or understandings with one another for joint purchases of materials, supplies and equipment or for a common policy in sale of their output.

Charges Against Ward.
Under the Clayton act the government seeks to force the "defendants" to dispossess themselves of stocks, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any competing company heretofore acquired by them to the end that competition may be fully restored in the baking industry."

William B. Ward and associates were charged by the government with planning since 1921 "to bring all or substantially all of the wholesale bakeries in the United States under the control of a single gigantic corporation and thereby to eliminate all competition between the baking companies, both locally and in interstate commerce."

The Ward interests have sought to eliminate competition in the purchase of ingredients and equipment and eventually to acquire milling companies, yeast companies and other producers of necessary ingredients and equipment, it may set forth.

Word, "Waiter," Too Plebian.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The word, "waiter," is considered too plebian and derogatory a name for the man who serves food to diners in the restaurant and will be changed. The United Restaurant Owners association of New York announced. The new name will be chosen in a contest.

U.S. Now Uses Three Times As Many Autos As Rest of World

Almost Twenty Million Motor Cars Registered on January 1, According to Department of Commerce.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The American people are now using three times as many automobiles as all the rest of the world combined, the department of commerce announced today.

Almost every American home has its car.

There were 10,999,436 automobiles registered throughout the United States on January 1, last, the department's census showed—or approximately one motor vehicle for every five men, women and children in the country. The census takers estimate there are 25,000,000 homes in the country. Evenly distributed, this would amount to an automobile in four of every five homes.

Unofficial estimates placed the value of the country's motor transport at more than $11,000,000,000 and the annual operating cost runs into billions and staggers the imagination.

Cost 20,000 Lives in 1925.

Rapid motor transportation cost the country an additional billion or two in property damage, as the result of traffic accidents, to say nothing of about 20,000 in lives during 1925.

Department figures showed 25,973,928 automobiles in operation in the world January 1, compared with 22,700,344 a year before. Of the world's motor vehicles 20,799,151 were passenger cars, 181,573 buses, 3,542,939 trucks and 1,519,705 motorcycles.

In the United States the passenger machines numbered 17,317,357, buses, 80,000; trucks, 244,579, and motorcycles, 155,500.

The United Kingdom with 660,734 passenger cars, 18,000 buses, 224,287 trucks and 571,522 motors, was the nearest automotive rival of the United States.

The census showed 855,000 motor vehicles in France, 727,594 in Canada, 539,830 in Germany, 368,293 in Austria and 184,700 in Italy.

Motorcycle in Tibet.

According to the survey there was one lone motor vehicle, a motorcycle, in Tibet, and two each in the Solomon and Ellice Islands. The Fiji Islands of the South Seas operated 474 machines while 25 puffed about in the mountains of Abyssinia.

Officials said that in addition to owning most of the world's automobiles, the United States produced even a greater percentage of the total. American automobile markets continued to expand rapidly abroad last year, in spite of the efforts of foreign governments to turn purchases to domestic producers.

While in Europe extremely stiff competition exists, cars from the United States were sent to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South America in greater numbers. In Argentina a big percent of the 181,250 machines came from this country.

Triumvirate Charged.

The government outlined successive steps in the alleged conspiracy from the formation of the United Baking corporation in 1921, to the announcement of the Ward Food Products corporation January 30, 1926.

Although it was declared that the cost of production of bread has been reduced in the last 25 years, the government charges that "such economies have not benefited the consumer by lowering the price of bread, but have been absorbed by the great baking companies."

The General, Ward and Continental Baking corporations have an annual output of about $1,200,000,000, according to the petition.

"The proceeding is unique in that it has for its main object the prevention of the formation of a combination in restraint of trade, instead of the dissolution of a combination already in existence," Sargent declared.

William B. Ward was named as the "most powerful single personage connected with the baking industry." Ward, Helms and Barber constitute a "triumvirate controlling the fortunes of the baking industry," the petition said.

CROWD ATTENDS M. E. SERVICES

"Church Night" Will be Observed on Tuesday.

First week of the mid-winter evangelistic campaign at the First Methodist Episcopal church closed yesterday with large crowds at both the morning and evening services. Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the church, occupied the pulpit at both services, while the music was in charge of Prof. Charles Weiland, of Aurora, Ill.

There will be no service tonight, Monday being "rest day." "Church Night" will be observed Tuesday evening when an effort will be made to have every member of the church in attendance. The sermon subject will be "He Knocketh for Admittance." Group picture of the choir and church officials will be taken at the close of the services.

"Family Night" will be observed Wednesday evening, when families are asked to attend in a body. Prof. Weiland will give a prize to the largest family in attendance. His subject will be "Two Ways."

Women organizations of the church will attend Thursday night's service. Dr. Fowler's sermon for this service will be "The Gospel's Power."

Members of the Sunday school will attend the Friday night service, which will be known as "Young People's Night." The sermon will be on the subject, "The Open Door."

"Weiland Night," in honor of the song leader, will be observed on Saturday night. Special children's services will be conducted by Prof. Weiland at 4 o'clock on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Rev. A. J. Travis Urges Co-operation In Law Enforcement

Co-operation with authorities entrusted with the enforcement of laws, was urged by Rev. A. J. Travis, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ in his sermon on "The Ideal City," delivered at the Sunday evening service.

He condemned jay walking, especially in the business district, and also the fast and reckless auto driver and joy rider.

Hoffman was taken to a Fremont hospital, where an operation failed to save his life.

An airside watchdog, who resisted Clark's efforts to break into the house may be used as an important witness in the trial, Sheffer said. The dog was beaten into insensibility and carried to the barn before the Hoffmans returned home. Sheffer believes that the dog will remember the man who beat him so cruelly and will thus strengthen the chain of evidence.

Clark, in making his confession, said he had not expected to stop at his sister's home, but ran out of gasoline and so decided to remain over night. He was enjoying a late and hearty breakfast when Sheriff William A. Wrot and Cleveland police entered and surrounded the home.

Tears Up $2,000.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—John J. Juka, 38, stood in Battery park laughing cheerfully as he tore $2,000 in the form of ten and twenty yellowbacks into small fragments. The police took him to the observation ward at Bellevue hospital.

OPPOSE STREET ASSESSMENTS

Lisbon Council Hears Protests—Reduction Asked.

Several owners of property fronting on Jerome street, Lisbon, have appealed to the village council of Lisbon for a reduction in special street assessments, but it is improbable the request will be granted, it was said today.

When the matter was brought to the attention of the council, action was deferred.

This street, which extends east from North Market street and passes the fair grounds, was paved with part county aid. Some property owners contend that the county should have put more money into the project on account of the street being a part of an inter-county highway.

Property owners also claim that curbing is lacking at the east end of the street. It is also charged that the street was not finished according to contract.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the work that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They do not injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

"Headache," "dizziness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" the clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Normal Bowel Movements Come In Ten Days

Regular And Natural And No Artificial Aid Required for a Long Time To Come.

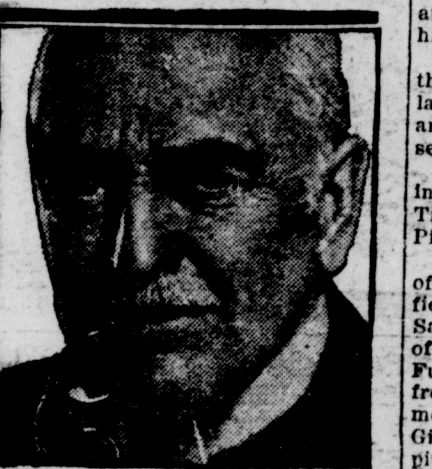

Millions of men and women who have habitual constipation will hail this news with delight. Take one bottle of McCoy's Rinolin according to directions and if it does not help you to entirely rid yourself of chronic constipation or any functional bowel disorder, any druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

Thousands of people, most of them victims of harsh and harmful cathartics and purgatives, salts and calomel, have already taken McCoy's Rinolin with the same gratifying result—habitual constipation with them is a thing of the past and bowel movements are natural and regular.

Like McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, this efficient preparation is thoroughly reliable and a pleasant, wholesome emulsion that has won the approval of many physicians.

Sensible people will take McCoy's Rinolin to establish normal peristaltic action and keep the bowels free from poisonous waste and the blood free from toxins.

Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

He was wasting away—from an overworked stomach. Stuart's set him to rights! Use these pleasant little tablets, and eat your fill! It's a condition that causes stomach pain, gas, sourness, and distress of indigestion. And Stuart's tablets guard your stomach as well. Chewing one or two gives your stomach alkaline—and relief is instantaneous. Hearty eaters—hard smokers—high livered—find Stuart's a boon and blessing!

Full Box FREE!

Any druggist has Stuart's tablets, 25c and 50c. Or, a full box free if you write the F. A. Stuart Company, Dept. C, Marshall, Mich. Get a metal box of Stuart's for the pocket—and keep it filled! A new stomach for twenty cents.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

SATURDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Safe for flimsy silks; safe for dainty colors; safe for tender hands.

Use Werck's Washing Machine Soap for the daily washings in the washboard bowl as well as the washing machine. You'll be delighted.

No injurious chemicals or acids.
No resin.
No silicate of soda.

Women's Feet Are Good As Ever Though Many Are Flat Footed

Denver Orthopedists are About Evenly Divided on Question of Pedal Deformity.

DENVER.—Denver orthopedists are about evenly divided on the moot question, "Are American Women Flat-footed?" The charge of pedal deformity was hurled at American women by the leader of a woman's hockey team from Europe, which recently staged a successful American tour. She said the American girls couldn't use their toes in running on their skates and thus suffered defeat.

Denver men who make women's feet their business are not so sure that "our" girls are generally afflicted with flat, twisted, distorted, deformed extremities.

"Not more than 10 per cent of the women who came into our shoe department are afflicted with serious foot ailments," declared H. B. Teets, superintendent of one large shoe store.

"As in almost everything else that pertains to health," he continued, "people are just beginning to learn anatomy and to understand what the causes of a great many ailments are."

In my opinion women have just as good feet now as they ever have had since the general use of shoes began."

L. H. Gilmore, foot specialist in a local department store, is not so optimistic, however. He thinks a normal foot is "rare," and that women's feet are flat and distorted in many ways.

"Going from extremely high heels to low ones is the reason," he declared. Gilmore also says that women nowadays are wearing bigger shoes, and that this is partly because of flat feet.

Other foot specialists, interviewed, expressed differing opinions, some declaring that there is "flat footed"

Mr. Allan Small, of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I have always lived in fear of heart trouble—my father, as well as my mother's sister, died from this dreaded affliction when I was a child. As it was on both sides of my family and I had often heard it was hereditary, I lived in dread and fear."

"As I have had at intervals severe abdominal pains, heart-burn and pressure on the heart, I felt there was no relief so I became reconciled to the horrible truth I was doomed, nothing could be done and must await my time to go as my father and mother's sister I never dreamed I might only have intestinal indigestion, and my trouble was sour and acid stomach, causing gas pressure on the heart. Thanks to a friend who suggested Carter's Little Liver Pills as a remedy for faulty intestinal elimination, I am now free from the dreaded fear and enjoy all around good health. Small pills, easy to take and relieve the bowels in a rational way, with pleasant after effects." For sale at all druggists.

'SATISFIED CUSTOMER BEST ADVERTISER,' O. K. SHOE REPAIR SLOGAN

Tom Gust, Formerly of Chester, Operating Electrically Equipped Shop at 214 East Fifth Street, Practices Word "Service" in His Business — "Has Them Ready When Promised."

"A satisfied customer is the best advertiser."

This is the slogan of Tom Gust, formerly of Chester, who recently purchased the O. K. Electric Shoe Repair establishment, 214 East Fifth street, this city. This shop was established three years ago.

In his business, Mr. Gust uses the best of materials, being a firm believer in quality as well as expert workmanship. A-1 white oak leather, the widely known Goodyear Wingfoot and the famous United States Springfoot heels are used exclusively at the O. K. establishment.

The shop is equipped with the latest type shoe repairing machinery, which includes an electric stitching machine, finisher and polisher. Only the best of work is turned out by Mr. Gust, who gives every pair of shoes brought into his shop personal attention.

The proprietor knows the real meaning of the word "service" practices it in his business. "I never make a promise for delivery which I feel that I cannot fulfill," he says. "In fact, I would rather have a customer take his work to some other establishment than disappoint him. Have them ready when promised is my slogan and my many customers have learned to appreciate my promptness."

Mr. Gust says that thousands of dollars is wasted in East Liverpool and vicinity every year because people neglect to take the proper care of their footwear.

"For instance," he declares, "a slightly run-down heel may not discommode the wearer a great deal in walking but the injurious effect that it has on the balance of the shoe is surprising. Soon the counter gives one way or the other, the arch begins to sag, the sole begins to wear on one side and it is not long before the entire shoe is out of shape, making it almost impossible to bring it back to its former appearance. Whereas, if new heels had been applied from the start, the shoe no doubt would have given weeks and possibly months of comfortable and satisfactory wear."

Watch your shoes carefully, especially the heels and you will be surprised at the additional service you can get out of your footwear. The O. K. Electric Shoe Repair Shop is one of the few establishments of its kind in eastern Ohio that re-soles and re-heels galoshes. "Why spend from $4 to $6 for a new pair of galoshes when they can be repaired and placed in first-class condition for a dollar?" Mr. Gust asks. He thoroughly understands this line of work and guarantees first-class workmanship and material in the repair of galoshes.

Ruppert Hits National League Action On Landis Contract

Although Professing Friendship for Baseball Ruler and Approval of His Reign, New York Magistrate Avers Inter-league Discussion Was in Order First.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—There will be absolutely no loss of life in Washington tomorrow through a stampede of American leaguers to climb aboard the band wagon and join the National league's movement for a bigger and better regime for Judge Landis, according to Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Yankee president. The colonel has nothing against Landis, either as a commissioner or as a man, neither, he believes, has the American league in general.

He merely thinks that some one has rushed in where angels fear a stubbed toe and, in consequence, there has been no chance for concerted action, particularly on the terms of the new contract that might be extended to the judge. It might be necessary to make a few changes in the document, he intimated, since the old one was largely experimental.

At the same time, he admitted that the National league action meant that American leaguers ultimately would be forced to follow suit or be branded "as disloyal to Landis."

The colonel has no wish to be identified in this way. He really is a pro-Landis man but thinks he is entitled to resent what he feels to be a bit of "popping off" out of turn by the National league. He thinks the boys should have gotten together in the back room somewhere and talked things over.

Advices Dignified Silence.
In brief, everything is quiet, except with Ruppert. If he has anything to say at the schedule meeting tomorrow, he will counsel that the American league club owners preserve an aloof and dignified silence, which may come under the head of refined cruelty to some of them.

"As everyone knows, I admire Judge Landis personally and am a strong supporter of his regime," Ruppert declared. "But that doesn't blind me to the fact that the National league was unnecessarily premature in its resolution to extend his term ten years. What was the big rush? The judge's contract has two years to run and both leagues could have gotten together on an extension in due course."

"Now, however, we will have to play ball on that resolution or be called disloyal to Landis. I think the National league went out of its way to place us in an embarrassing position. If it wanted baseball to go on record in favor of Landis, I think it would have been more politic for the

Miss Wills Not Bothered By Defeat in Doubles.

By Frederick K. Abbott.

CANNES, Feb. 8.—Helen Wills is not in the least perturbed over the fact that she met defeat yesterday in the mixed doubles, when pitted against Suzanne Lenglen.

The California girl looks forward to the possibility of meeting Suzanne in the singles of the Carlton club tournament this week as "a lot of fun."

"My, what a fuss every one is making about two girls who want to play a game of tennis," said Miss Wills to the International News Service today, when asked about the projected match with Suzanne this week. "Really, nobody ever thinks about the fun I get out of tennis. In the first place I came to France to study. That's work. When I play tennis that's play and fun."

"Suzanne is a wonderful player and though I have heaps of confidence in myself, I wouldn't for the world attempt to predict the result. Regardless of the result, think what fun I will have."

Miss Wills took her defeat of yesterday philosophically. "My lobbing wasn't so good," she said. "I couldn't keep them in the back-court. Naturally, Suzanne killed them off the net."

Both Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen drew byes in today's play.

Miss Wills is paired with Mlle. Contalvas in the doubles and is not entered in the mixed doubles.

Suzanne is expected to withdraw from the doubles in order to save her strength for the singles.

After yesterday's game there is no doubt but what Suzanne is the best bet in the match against Miss Wills. Her play yesterday showed her to be a more brilliant player, even though she did lack the stamina of the American girl.

While Mlle. Lenglen was all over the court and with hardly any apparent motion, Miss Wills seemed rather cumbersome in her movements by comparison.

Miss Wills learned much in yesterday's match, though, one thing being that she cannot lob them to Suzanne.

The crowds were with the American girl and they will be with her this week. She showed herself a fighter and this very ability to fight against heavy odds may stand her in good stead. A few of the venturesome are backing her as a long shot against Suzanne.

Columbiana County School Fives Prime For Tourney Clashes

East Liverpool and Wellsville Scheduled for Class A Competition at New Concord; Salem Entered in Northeastern Ohio Section; "B" Teams Will Fight it Out at Youngstown.

WITH the first week of February gone, high school basketball of the county are beginning to turn their attention toward sectional and state tournament games scheduled for the latter part of this month and next.

The lower Columbiana county class A passers will battle at New Concord and Class B squads will play their round at Salem and the closing setos at Rayen, Youngstown.

RIVIERA ADMIRING MISS WILLS' GOWNS

CANNES, Feb. 8.—Whatever the Riviera may think of Helen Wills on the tennis courts, they are all admiring her in her new Paris gowns.

Miss Wills attracted almost as much attention off the courts as she did on them, when she appeared in a new model suit of gray with red fox trimming. She gave her impetus to the reported dying cloche hat mode, for she wore a cloche hat made of the same material as her chic suit.

BUCKEYES BEAT CHESTER QUINT

The Buckeye basketball team defeated the Chester Reserves, 39-12, Saturday afternoon on the "Y" court. The Buckeyes took the lead at the start and were never headed. Buckeyes Still In Big Ten Race

Two Separate Fights on Among Teams.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The western conference basketball campaign has revolved itself into two scrambles—in the second division and among the leading fives.

Indiana and Ohio State, the only first division teams to play during the week, kept themselves in the race by winning, respectively over Iowa and Chicago. Return of the consin, Michigan and Purdue to the fray this week, after a lapse of a fortnight, is expected to bring some major changes in the conference standing, now nearly the same for a month.

Iowa's defeat of Minnesota, 21 to 14, yesterday, put the Hawkeyes in seventh place, behind the dormant Illinois, and relegated the Gophers to the cellar. Chicago's 14 to 18 loss to the Buckeyes gave it a toboggan push into eighth position. The standing:

Warren Outscores High In Fast Tilt

Weight, agility, five pairs of fleet feet, lightning fast passes and a flock of shots combined to give Warren high school passers a decisive 40 to 26 conquest over the Blue and White here Saturday night and the victory gave the Mahoning valley an even week-end with the Ohio river as in week-end contests, Girard having taken the count on the night before.

Every point registered by the visitors with the exception of two in the final was earned from scrimmage. The greater heft of the Warren passers, combined with their speed, enabled them to outlast the locals, the results being plainly evident in the third and fourth periods when the Blue and White offensive suffered an acute attack of anemia.

Fresh at the outset of the engagement, Lora's lightweight lads kept the visitors at their heels throughout the initial period save for one or two exceptions when the count was knotted. The Potters dropped back in the second to give the Warren five an 18-16 advantage at the halfway mark.

The visitors improved, if anything, during the 10 minute intermission and they banged the leather at the hoop for 13 points in this one quarter, the period winding up with the score 31-22. And the Potters' efforts in the final stanza were insufficient to bring them out of the rut.

Forward Horner and Center Kempke nailed the basket for seven field goals apiece, the majority of which came in the second half. Horner was a veritable flash and he worked harder for the points he made than any two other Warrenites on the court. He operated chiefly around the foul line on his scoring attempts although he was not averse to trying his luck from the corners occasionally.

Jim Hamilton got around the big fellows for five field goals while English collected a trio of two pointers, Deidrick two and Pusey one.

The Warren defense was on a par with the Potters' throughout the clash, but they copped off the laurels, if any, when they began to fling the sphere around the court. When the ball left their hands it almost sizzled until it was clamped by the hands of a receiver. Their heaves were in marked contrast to the Potters' whose overhead lobbs at crucial moments were captured by enemy performers.

"Cap" Pusey and his squad went down but they perished fighting gamely. Carl Wilson, injured at Columbiana, got into the scrap at junctures, relieving Deidrick, the latter, however, finished the game.

Warren girls outclassed the local lassies in the preliminary, winning by a score of 56 to 10. Miss McCormick forward, alone accounted for 25 points with 11 field goals and three fouls.

BALKANS UNDER BANDIT SPELL

Daring of These Outlaws Is Celebrated in Song and Story.

Vienna—Vienna was still thrilled by the spectacular trial of Mencia Carabala, a young Macedonian girl, who, at the opera last May, killed Todor Penza, a notorious Balkan bandit chief, when news issued from Greece that the Brabant and Yagoullis, brigand bands that for years terrorized the inhabitants of Mount Olympus, had been wiped out. The heads of the leaders, on which a total of 10,000,000 drachmas had been set, were taken to Katerini, a provincial capital, and exhibited to the public.

Reports of Balkan outlaws appear so frequently in the newspapers that a casual reader might conclude that southeastern Europe was largely populated by brigands. He would not be far wrong, for in that part of the world banditry is an ancient institution with firm roots in the customs of the people, and if every one is not a bandit, all are at least potential bandits.

"Once upon a time there was a bandit." It is with this phrase that most of the bedtime stories in the Balkans begin. The bandit is also the hero of innumerable folk-songs. At the village feasts, when the wine starts flowing, tales of his strength and bravery are chanted to the monotonous tones of reed pipe and drum.

The boys of Sofia, Monastir, Saloniki and Athens do not enviously read of superlatives like Nick Carter or superlatives like Dick Merriwell. The thin, paper-backed volumes which they cleverly hide in their geographies and readers and ravenously devour while an unsuspecting teacher thinks they are following the lesson contain stories of superlatives. Athletes like Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Jack Dempsey and Paavo Nurmi would mean nothing to the Balkan youth who dreams of emulating the exploits of Condylis or Todor Alexandroff. Condylis rose from a comitadjil chief, fighting the Turks and Bulgars in Macedonia to minister of war in Greece, and Todor Alexandroff, although only a bandit leader, made and unmade prime ministers in Bulgaria.

Some Are Political Healers.

In truth, banditry ranks high as a profession in the Balkans. Its practitioners win power, wealth, fame and sometimes death. They are ubiquitous and of two distinct types—political and nonpolitical. The former are usually members of revolutionary committees and are called comitadjis, which means "committees." They are especially active in border provinces and usually receive secret support from the various Balkan governments. There are different groups with different political ends, but all plunder unmercifully the native peasants, shepherds and merchants.

In many parts of Macedonia they carry on an underground government, levying taxes, dispensing justice and conscripting recruits. Those who refuse to submit to their dictates are punished by instant death. Therefore they inspire fear in the hearts of the populace. An experience I had on my way across the Balkans to Turkey vividly demonstrates this fact.

At Trieste in the spring of 1920 I boarded the Orient Express for Constantinople. The country we rode through still bore the signs of war. The bridges were blown up and temporary structures of wood had been built to take the place of the old steel or stone. Passengers were ordered to get out and walk across these, as there was doubt that the trestles would bear up the loaded train.

On the second day out of Trieste, when we had left Nish behind and were passing through the heart of Macedonia, the passengers were just rising from their berths when the train suddenly stopped. My companion, an Armenian merchant of Saloniki, looked out the window and gazed down along the track ahead. He immediately drew in his head, and, greatly excited, shouted, "Comitadjis!"

Hurriedly he took a wallet from his coat pocket and hid it under the mattress of his berth, and opening a suit-

A Knock on the Door.

Wondering what had so terrified my fellow-traveler, I looked out myself and saw massed before the locomotive a group of men in ragged uniforms and armed with rifles—unshaven and fierce looking fellows. I recalled reading only a few weeks before that the Orient Express had been held up in Macedonia by a band of Bulgarian comitadjis, the passengers robbed and a number of Serbs taken off and held for ransom; and I was silently thankful that, except for a few French francs to pay for meals in the dining car, all my funds were in a letter of credit negotiable only by myself; that my watch was of the dollar sort, and that I was not a promising candidate for ransom.

The train began to move, the comitadjis scrambled aboard. Train-robbing tactics in Macedonia, I decided, differ from those in vogue in America. Dim memories of Jesse James and the more recent impression of the movies told me that the standard American method was to line up the passengers along the track and go through their pockets. Also a special detachment of bandits, I recalled, usually went aboard the halted train and rifled the baggage.

The train rapidly gained full speed, and my companion and I sat down on the lower bunk of the compartment and waited for the comitadjis to come and search us. In a hoarse whisper he said: "They are terrible men! They may kill us!" There came a knock on the door. The merchant was speechless with fright. "Yes! What is it?" "Petit déjeuner servi," came back the reply. The dining car porter was announcing breakfast.

Smoke-Room Gossip Not Fanciful.

Out in the corridor was a dapper Serbian lieutenant with monocle and riding stock. He greeted me with a pleasant "Bon jour," and said he was commanding the detachment of Serbian soldiers which had just boarded the train and would accompany it to the Bulgarian frontier. The government at Belgrade had taken this precaution against comitadjil attacks ever since the express had been held up two weeks before.

On hearing this the Armenian merchant, smiling sheepishly, took his wallet from under the mattress and put it back in his pocket, and removed the packet of papers, slightly damp but otherwise unharmed, from the waste pan. His mistake was natural, as the roles of comitadjil and soldier in this corner of Europe are often interchangeable.

During the remainder of the journey to Constantinople the passengers talked of nothing but bandits; bandits who had become general, provincial governors, and even prime ministers, and a Serb boasted that his king was the descendant of a famous brigand of the early Nineteenth century whose name was Kara (Black) George, from whom the ruling family of Yugoslavia takes its name of Karageorgievic. Kara George fought the Turks with much the same tactics as the Bulgarian comitadjis use against the Serbs in Macedonia today. Every passenger seemed to have had at least one experience with bandits.

All had been shot at, some had been wounded, abducted, ransomed. Not to be outdone, I told them of the exploits of the gunmen of my native New York and let them believe that I was personally acquainted with the most notorious. All this talk, instead of making the bandits seem more real, made me feel as if they were of the same nature as ghosts. On arriving at Stamboul, however, news that two Near East relief workers whom I was to visit in Cilicia had been murdered a few days before by Turkish chetahs (brigands in peace and irregular in war) made the bandits again realistic.

Kingdoms for Strong Arms.

It is only a few months ago that the Greek island of Samos, off the west coast of Asia Minor, fell into the hands of two notorious brigands, the Gagas brothers, and their followers. This exploit brought to mind the days when any daring adventurer could have had a kingdom in the Aegean for the courage and skill to seize it.

In the Fifteenth century, before the Turks won control of the whole eastern Mediterranean, all the islands in this corner of the world, as well as the greater part of what is now Greece, were ruled by so-called barons, counts, dukes and princes, who usually were nothing but glorified brigands, often fugitives from justice in their native lands in western Europe.

Still earlier many a farm lad who had come to the Levant as a Crusader remained to rule over an opal isle or a rocky peninsula. And even under the Turk a few intrepid souls succeeded in maintaining their supremacy in remote places where the sultan ruled nominally, but where his officials never penetrated to return alive. This tradition of banditry, built up through centuries, still lives in the Aegean, although the modern bandit is seldom able to carry out an exploit in the grand manner. The Gagas brothers succeeded in holding Samos for only a few days. Two Greek battleships were sent from Piraeus to oust them. Faced with ten-inch guns, the brigands were forced to take to the mountains with all the occupants of the local jail, whom they had liberated on their first day in power.—New York Times.

Charlestoneer Breaks Leg in Wedding Glide

Hammond, Ind.—Check one for the Charlestoneer.

As a Charlestoneer performer, Robert Richardson was nix. He tried his best, "his true, and took a couple of lessons and all that. He got so he could kick and slip with fair success and Charlestoneer whenever occasion demanded.

But when it came to instructing others, that's where he met his downfall. And it was plenty hard, let it be known. As a matter of fact, he fell so hard while trying to impress guests at Joe Kasper's wedding anniversary here recently that when he was raised from the floor it was found he had a compound fracture of one leg. He is in St. Margaret's hospital with his leg in a plaster cast. And the world goes Charlestoneing on.

Princess Alexandra Only Shingled Royalty

London—Princess Alexandra, wife of Prince Arthur of Connaught, has gained distinction as the only shingled member of the British royal family. It is noteworthy, however, that whenever she appears at formal dinners at Buckingham palace the princess has always worn her "evening locks" as wigs for the society circles.

The queen of Spain and Queen Maud of Norway, both recent visitors to London, still wear their hair long, as do Queen Marie of Rumania, the troubled mother of the romantic Prince Carol, and the queen of the Belgians, who recently was incorporeally reported to have been shingled. Some of the younger members of the royal houses have had their hair cut, but Princess Alexandra of Connaught is the only member of the British royal family who thus far has adopted the fashion.

Canada produced about 140,000 passenger automobiles and imported more than 55,000 from the United States last year.
